

Team is 'red hot'; so are Plymouth fans

By R.T. THOMPSON

"Our team is red hot" is the way more than 1,500 Plymouth Salem High rooters were cheering as they walked out of the gym at Livonia Franklin High after seeing the Rocks literally crush Thurston.

They came to see their team win and that it did with such ease many are wondering how it lost any games during the season. However, the record reads 20-2 and that just has to be the best ever put together by a Plymouth quintet in modern times. There isn't any question about this being "our" team. The Plymouth stands rocked when the Rocks scored and the moans could be heard all over the place when things went wrong.

That didn't happen too often this time. The Rocks were out to win and move into the regional "A" finals against Detroit Denby Friday night at 8 p.m. on the same court and they accomplished the feat.

NOW THE BIG problem is whether Plymouth Salem can cope with the fast breaking Denby offense and its constantly intimidating defense.

The Plymouth crowd was in a festive mood. Probably most thought Thurston was overmatched but that didn't make any difference, they came to see their team move up another notch in the state tournament.

A victory over Denby Friday will send the Rocks into the quarterfinals next Thursday night at Ferndale against the winner of the regional tourney at Birmingham Seaholm where defending champion Brother Rice was upset and ousted Wednesday.

Big Eric Agardy, the giant center of Plymouth Salem, needed only 11 points to shatter the school record for most points in a single season. The mark of 405 points was set by Tim Van Wagoner in the 1972-73 season. It went by the boards when Eric gathered in 25 points to boost his season total to 420 with more games to play.

Just think how many points he may have had if Coach Fred Thomann had kept him in all of the game. As it was Eric sat out almost all of one quarter and part of the final period when Thomann gave his second stringers a chance.

PLYMOUTH ISN'T a bit different from any other community. When it has a winner, fans turn out en masse. The situation is much the other way with a loser.

It's a great feeling to have a winner, a team that is red hot, a team that appears capable of going farther this year than any other Plymouth High quintet in this modern age.

They turn out whether young or old and perhaps one of the youngest fans was a six-month-old youngster held by two youthful parents who just couldn't miss the game.

Then there was Attorney Ed Draugelis, who played quite a bit of basketball in his high school days and now is a regular. Ed just can't miss a game... it's a must.

Seems strange not to see Doc Salan in the crowd. He didn't miss a game for years until he retired and moved to northern Michigan where he now has become an avid follower of the team there. One can expect he may be in Friday's crowd. Doc just can't miss seeing Plymouth's greatest basketball team play.

However, he still is wondering who arranged to call the school Plymouth Salem when it had such a beautiful name... Plymouth High.

Consumer plan readied

By RICHARD GOLD

CANTON—Township residents may soon have their own consumer protection agency. The township board will act on a proposal submitted by Trustee Robert Myers at their next meeting, March 11.

The lengthy proposal, drafted by Myers and local attorney Peter Bundarin, provides for a five member council and a legal aide.

According to the plan submitted to the board, one member would be from the board, and the four volunteers would be selected by the board. Bundarin has offered his legal services free of charge, should the proposal be ratified.

The new administration passed a resolution at its first meeting, Nov. 26, to investigate the possibility of a consumer group. Since then, Myers has been working on the plan.

The activities of the agency will be funded through licensing of businesses, according to Myers' plan. All businesses in the township would be licensed by the agency and while providing revenue, the licensing power would also be the agency's strong-est legal tool.

In December 1974, the Michigan State Legislature passed Public Act 375. The law gives townships the right to license and punish businessmen who fail to meet local standards.

Col. Joseph Parisi, director of the Michigan Township Association explained the reason for the act. "For the past six years or so we have noticed a trend where undesirable businesses have been spilling over into the townships. Cities, which have always had this licensing power, have been using it and the businesses that couldn't get licenses in the city have been moving into the surrounding townships."

While Myers' plan is intended to protect the consumer, it is also geared toward helping the honest businessman. He says, "in order to develop an environment where legitimate business interests can flourish, it is necessary to give the patrons and consumers an effective body which will have the ability to hear, mediate and conciliate consumer complaints and grievances."

"This will provide protection for the business community from harassment and innuendo and protect the consumer's interests and rights."

Myers sees several functions and purposes for the new agency. He says that it can be used:

- To promote better understanding between the consumer and businessman.

- To investigate complaints of consumers.

- To keep a current listing of all businesses in the community.

- To recommend further ordinances and legislation to appropriate governmental bodies on consumer affairs.

- To assist and develop programs for consumer education.

To satisfy these goals, Myers suggests the agency publish a monthly report outlining the activities, revenue and recommendations of the consumers group.

According to the plan, certain business practices would be declared illegal, including "fraud, misrepresentation or omission of material fact by a merchant concerning either the purchase of a good or service or the extension of credit." The plan also says that harassment or threat by telephone or letter of a consumer, or the badgering of a person's employer over indebtedness could be found illegal, as could arbitrary refusal or termination of credit without explanation and without allowing persons to correct errors in their credit record.

While Myers' plan suggests the use of licensing power as an effective tool, it also proposes that the agency be allowed to take businessmen to court if they continue to do business after their license is revoked or suspended.

The primary goal, however, of the agency will be to mediate complaints, says the trustee. If after that, a businessman repeatedly fails to meet good business practices, the licensing power could be brought into play.

Myers also proposes that the agency be empowered to preside over public hearings, should complaints reveal that a merchant is not adhering to good business practices and mediation is impossible.

According to his plan, the council would subpoena a businessman, through the District Court if necessary, and hold a public hearing. If the five members of the agency found that the businessman guilty of certain violations of the ordinance, he could be forced to make restitution to complaining consumers.

If wrong doing is found, the merchant also could be asked to pay for any or all of the costs of investigating a complaint against him.

Says Myers, "If the board passes this, it could be a first in the state of Michigan."

School board maintains stand to preserve trees

PLYMOUTH—A little more than an acre of trees will be spared the "woodsmen's axe" with a decision by the Plymouth School Board to keep a new elementary school "out of the woods."

The board voted to return the school to its original placement on a 23-acre site in Canton Township, so that most of the eight acres of trees on the site could be preserved.

The question of the trees was first raised last week when architects presented final site plans for the new school, which will serve students in the Windsor Park Subdivision and other students in the Joy-Lilley Road area.

Changing from original plans the architects, Tarapata, MacMahon, Paulson and Associates, had moved the school into the midst of the wooded area removing more than an acre of the trees.

SCHOOL BOARD members balked at approving the new plans last week and set a special meeting for Monday to review the situation.

The decision to return to the original plans will delay the letting of bids on the project for a minimum of two weeks, according to Peter Tarapata.

Speaking for the architects, Larry Morris listed the aesthetic advantages of locating the school within the wooded setting, and pointed out that it would give greater use for the remaining open area for playfields, or to allow for additional building on the site.

The 23-acre site was purchased with the possibility of constructing the elementary school for the present and possibly adding a middle school at a later date.

Morris also suggested that placing the school in the woods would leave room for the opening of Fleet Street at a later date. The extension of Fleet would cut the parcel in half.

With board members Marcia Borowski, Marda Benson, and Tom Yack firmly behind the move to return the school to its original location on the site, a motion to approve the completed documents for the site in the woods was defeated 3-3.

A second motion to place the school site out of the woods was passed 6-0.

The board then reviewed interior drawings for all three new elementary schools that will be built during the next 18 months. Scheduled for a September 1976 opening, the three buildings will be architecturally identical and all three will serve Canton Township. In addition to the Windsor Park site, schools will be constructed near Haggerty, between Ford and Cherry Hill, and near Haggerty between Palmer and Cherry Hill.

Agent to take local gripes

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP—The Wayne County Consumer Protection Agency will take consumer complaints on Wednesday, March 12, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Plymouth Township offices, 42350 Ann Arbor Road.

Consumers with complaints are advised to bring all pertinent documents concerning their cases.

A representative from the agency will return to Plymouth Township on May 14 and will take complaints on April 9 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at 16300 Sheldon, Northville Township.

Cites malpractice premiums

Rising costs force doctor's move

By R.T. THOMPSON

While the State Legislature still ponders the question of what to do about the rapidly rising premiums for doctors' malpractice insurance in Michigan, St. Mary Hospital in Livonia Tuesday reported the loss of a veteran member of the urology staff.

Lewis Sonda, M.D., became the first doctor to leave the staff to start practice again in another state. There have been incidents reported in Detroit of doctors giving up their profession rather than paying the tremendously high cost of malpractice insurance or facing the prospect of such a malpractice suit.

Dr. Sonda, a member of the St. Mary staff for the past 12 years, closed his office at 10951 Farmington Road Friday and already has moved to Colorado.

CLOSE ASSOCIATES said Dr. Sonda was told his malpractice insurance premium would be $24,000 with a $2,500 deductible. Rather than pay such a high rate and then face the problem of paying the first $2,500 should he lose a case, Dr. Sonda threw in the sponge and moved.

"This is a tremendous loss to our staff," said Rita Radzalewski, business administrator of the hospital. "Dr. Sonda had been a valuable member of our staff for more than 12 years. No hospital likes to lose a man with that experience, but he told us he couldn't and wouldn't pay such a high premium for malpractice insurance and neither could he not be protected against such a suit... so he decided to go elsewhere."

Associates said Dr. Sonda has maintained his license in Colorado for several years and decided to go there where the risk of a malpractice suit isn't nearly as great as in Michigan.

ALTHOUGH this is the first resignation because of the malpractice problems, the staff at St. Mary Hospital was told by the anesthesiologists two months ago that they might leave as a unit because of the high cost of insurance.

The statement came after the company normally handling malpractice insurance announced it was going to drop all policies and a second company indicated a huge increase in premiums was coming up.

It is the increase that has most of the doctors worrying about whether they can afford such coverage.

One doctor at St. Mary said he was informed his rate would go up to around $36,000. At latest reports, he was considering giving up his practice since he didn't feel he could boost his fees to patients enough to cover the increased rate.

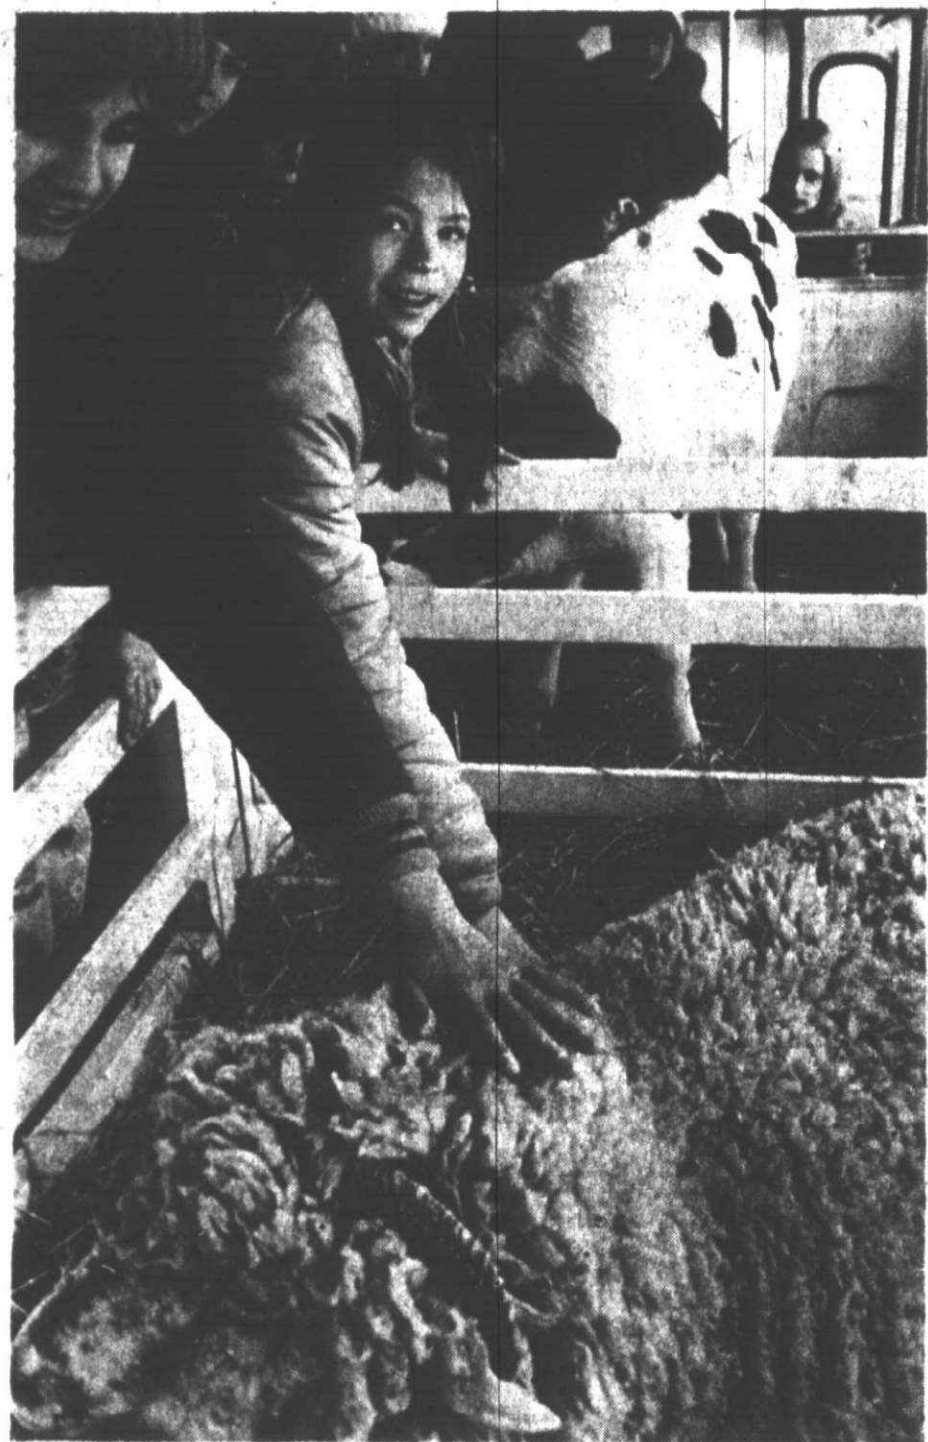

IN LANSING, Gov. William Milliken said a report on medical malpractice and malpractice insurance "forms a basis for action that can, if the Legislature will join in speedy consideration, alleviate the threat this

Rolling farm visits elementary pupils

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP—Beauregard the calf was there, and so was Maude the sheep with her 10-day-old lamb. Goats, ducks, bunnies and roosters b-a-a-e-d and quacked and nuzzled the hay on the farmyard floor.

"Can I touch the bunnies?" one second grader asked, while others chimed in, "Can I hold a bunny?" and "I want one too."

The "Farmyard Express" started its third season last week, as the old red school bus and its barnyard occupants who live on the Rotary School Farm rolled into the Allen Elementary School parking lot.

The rolling farmyard will conduct a two-month tour of all the district's elementary schools, according to farm manager Danny Sandmann, to give area girls and boys a close-up peek at the furry creatures.

O&E names John Reddy new executive editor

JOHN W. REDDY

John W. Reddy has been named executive editor of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. He was previously publisher of the Queen City Suburban Press in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The announcement was made by Co-Publishers Philip H. Power and Henry M. Hogan Jr., board chairman and president respectively of Suburban Communications Corp., parent company of both newspaper groups.

REDDY REPLACES R.T. (Tommy) Thompson, who turned 65 in January. Thompson joined the former Observer Newspapers organization in 1960, when its only editions were in Livonia and Redford Township, and guided its growth to seven.

In 1974, when the Observer and Eccentric organizations were merged, Thompson was named first executive editor of the combined group of 11 papers and presided over the start of No. 12, in Canton Township.

Thompson now becomes managing editor of the Plymouth office, where the Plymouth and Canton editions are written, and continues as a member of the Observer & Eccentric Editorial Board.

REDDY, NAMED publisher of the Press in 1973, was editor of the former Eccentric Newspapers for five years prior to his appointment to the Cincinnati position.

Before joining the former Eccentric Newspapers in 1968, Reddy was a reporter for the Chicago Sun-Times for five years. His newspaper career began on the Sterling (Ill.) Gazette. He served as a reporter and editor of Paddock Publications in the suburbs of Chicago for the next two years.

Reddy, a former Birmingham resident, was active as a director of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Rotary Club.

Reddy will operate from the company's Birmingham office at 1225 Bowers.

2 oppose tax cut amendment

While all three congressmen representing western Wayne County approved a $21.3 billion tax cut bill last week, two, Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) and William Ford (D-Taylor) voted against an amendment to the bill which would repeal the oil depletion allowance.

The House voted 249-163 to repeal the allowance which has been part of the tax law for more than 50 years.

ESCH, whose district includes Plymouth and most of Livonia, said Tuesday (March 3) he is for doing away with the oil depletion allowance but voted against it because "there is every indication it will postpone the tax rebate bill."

The fourth-term congressman said he is on record for phasing out the oil depletion allowance over a two to three year period and substituting, for example, an excess profits tax.

U.S. REP. William Brodhead (D-Detroit) voted along with Esch and Ford on Feb. 27 to approve the tax cut bill which would ease the tax burden for individuals by about $16.2 billion.

About half the reduction would be 1974 tax rebate payable in May and the rest in lower tax withholding rates, effective at the same time.

Key provisions of the House bill are:

- A rebate equal to 10 per cent of most individuals' income tax, with a minimum repayment of $100. It would rise to $200 for those with $20,000 incomes and decrease to $100 for those making $30,000 or more. Those persons paying less than $100 in taxes will get a full rebate.

- An increase in the minimum standard deduction, standard deduction percentage and maximum standard deduction.

- A tax credit of five per cent of total income, up to a total credit of $200 for persons with incomes of $4,000 and smaller credits for those with incomes of up to $6,000. For those who owed no federal income tax, or whose tax was smaller than the credit, a cash rebate of the difference would be paid by the government.

The final vote on the tax cut bill was 317-97.

Brodhead's district includes Redford Township; Ford's, Westland, Garden City, Canton Township and part of Livonia.

Crim to address SEMCOG delegates

State Rep. Bobby D. Crim (D-Davison), Speaker of the House, will address the seventh annual meeting of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) March 7.

Crim is the first Democratic out-state Speaker of the House in Michigan's history. Before being unanimously elected to the speaker's seat, he served as majority floor leader, a member of the House Appropriations Committee, and chairman of the Select Committee to Study Civil Service.

Crim, who will speak at a noon luncheon during the annual meeting, also was once a member of the Genesee County Board of Supervisors and Davison City Council.

At the annual meeting, general assembly delegates are expected to elect 1975 officers. Nominated for chairman and first vice-chairman are Conrad L. Mallett and David H. Shepherd.

Township to expand open gardening plan

CANTON—"It's just like a broken tennis racquet—no strings attached," said Clerk John Flodin in reference to the "garden plan."

In the spring of 1974, Flodin got permission from a developer to "borrow at no cost" 20 acres of unused land at the corner of Warren and Lilley.

The township plowed the land and divided it up into plots of 25 by 50 feet. Residents were given use of the plots for vegetable gardens free of charge.

Three hundred and fifty families benefitted from the program last year and Flodin hopes to expand it this year.

Because of the huge success of the plan in 1974, Flodin is trying to double the amount of land available to township residents this year. "We'd like to get another 20 or 30 acres for 1975. Last year we had to turn down applicants for the garden. If we get the additional land this spring everyone that wants their own garden should be able to have one."

Last week, the township board gave Flodin the go ahead on the expanded plan. "The final plans haven't been made, because I'm still looking for a good second plot to use," said the clerk. "But as soon as I find some good garden soil, we'll begin accepting applications."

"Last year was great. We had an awful lot of people out there gardening and for a lot of them it was a new experience altogether. Some of them had never grown anything with their hands before."

"Those people got a good feeling and appreciation for the problems of farmers, because the drought hurt a lot of the crops."

Despite the lack of rain, last summer produced a lot of vegetables for township residents, said the clerk. "We had people out there every day, and I'll tell you some of those plots had beautiful gardens with rows as perfect and straight as you'll ever find."

Flodin added, "It was nice in another way. All those people were out there getting to know each other for the first time. It drew a lot of people together. It was a real social event."

Flodin estimates the cost of last year's project at less than $500. He said, "It wasn't a budgeted item, and I never really checked to see how much it cost. We just used a Department of Public Works tractor and plowed the land. We ran out of time at the end and paid a farmer to plow the rest. But for the money it cost, it created a lot of good will and a lot of food."

Absenteeism on rise in Wayne-Westland

By W.W. EDGAR

WESTLAND — In the earnest desire to improve the caliber of the students by offering teachers every opportunity to improve their ratings by attending workshops, the Wayne-Westland Board of Education has, innocently, brought about an increase in absenteeism among the tutors.

During the first 81 days of the present school year an average of 60 substitutes a day have been hired, compared to 57 a day during the entire 1973-74 school year.

"But," says Robert Benson, director of personnel, "there are two kinds of absenteeism. There is the teacher who is absent from the district because of personal or family illness. And there is the absence of a teacher from a work station while attending one of the workshops."

"According to our present figures, which will be given to the superintendent by the end of the month," Benson continues, "our absenteeism for sickness, either personal or family, is averaging about four a day, compared to three during the last school year."

IT IS THE absenteeism for sickness that is the chief concern, says Benson. The $28 daily wage is paid by the taxpayers and comes out of the general fund. The absenteeism while the teacher is attending workshop is financed through federal grants.

Thus far this year, according to Benson, 238 days have been lost by sickness. Of these, 132 were at the elementary level and 106 at the secondary level. All told, the cost to the taxpayer has been $6,664.

"When you consider that we are the third largest district in Wayne County and the seventh largest in the state," says Benson, "our average of three is very good. And even if it goes to four or five this year, it still is a good average."

The records revealed an oddity in that most of the absenteeism is on the Monday following pay day. It always was the belief of the officials that the Friday which was not the pay day was the worst day. And another surprise is that there are more demands for jury duty in the district court this year than ever before.

The programs and workshops being offered this year, and which have helped increase absenteeism (away from work station), are more numerous and varied than in other years. They include sex education, social studies, reading, career awareness, special education, the metric system and science.

The most interesting of these is the metric system workshop. The district is serving as the pilot, and the eyes of the educators will be focused on it. Teachers are being urged to attend the workshops to qualify for better positions.

An entirely new system of calling in substitutes has been established because of the heavy demand a year ago, when the entire operation was handled on the telephone switchboard.

"We carry a list of 300 substitutes," Benson explains, "and when you consider that the average is one substitute for every four phone calls, you can imagine the job we had. It meant making about 300 calls."

UNDER THE NEW system, one person is assigned to the calls and an electric secretary is on duty 24 hours each day. The woman in charge reports at 6 a.m. each morning and starts reading the tape and making the calls.

Benson also says many of the substitutes are called for only half days. In those cases there are twice as many calls as there are for full days, and it doubles the work.

"The new system had its bugs," says Benson, "especially at the start of the school year, when we were delayed because of the teacher strike. Our work piled up to the point where we had to forego our monthly publication of the absentee figures."

"We are now about up to date and plan to have a complete record of the first semester available by the end of the month. From what we can see now, our record will not be bad when you realize that we are working with a staff of 1,050 teachers. An average of three absentees a day will stand up against any other district."

Two Canton officials complain over input on school site decision

PLYMOUTH—Complaining that they were "left out in the cold" on the Plymouth School District's decision not to build a construction access road to a new school site, Canton Township Supervisor Robert Greenstein and Treasurer Carl Parsell made separate appearances before the board Monday night to make their displeasure known publicly.

Noting his concern over the lack of input from the township after a meeting was held to discuss potential problems for residents near the Windsor Park school site six weeks ago, Greenstein said he had been assured that the schools would meet with township officials again before a final decision was reached.

"THE TOWNSHIP is extremely disappointed that it wasn't allowed any further input into the decision. Whenever any question was put to the administration on the problem we were told they were still working on it."

The school board voted last week to scrap plans for a construction access road to the school site when costs estimates for the road and a bridge across the Tonquish Creek were set at approximately $100,000. Construction traffic to the site will enter through Fleet and Arlington Streets.

Referring to the first meeting between a few members of the school board, township board, and schools Supt. John Hoben, Greenstein said, "We felt at that time that this type of study was very fruitful and should be continued in the future, but since that time we have had no other information. In effect we've been left completely out in the cold."

School board secretary Marda Benson said Canton Township was sent an agenda "long before each school board meeting." She later suggested that if Canton officials had been that

Plymouth woman coordinates PA

By DARLENE STINSON

"Abusive parents aren't bad, ugly people. They're simply people with a problem, who can't solve the problem by themselves."

That's how Jill Mauch of Plymouth, who recently took the new regional coordinator post for "Parents Anonymous" (PA) groups in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, describes the type of parents to whom her organization is directed.

"People who abuse their children don't enjoy it," Mrs. Mauch added. "They feel guilty, but they can't always stop by themselves. It's something that can be helped."

That's where PA, a non-profit organization founded by a California woman five years ago, comes into the picture.

PA GROUPS, including those serving western Wayne County from Livonia and Wayne, generally meet on a weekly basis, Mrs. Mauch explained. Parents discuss events that occurred at home during the week, problems they may encounter with their children, marital problems or problems they may have had in their own childhood.

Although PA is aimed at parents who fear they may one day abuse their children as well as those who already have, Mrs. Mauch said PA parents are urged to call another member if they feel a "crisis" situation coming on. "There are alternatives to that kind of (abusive) behavior," Mrs. Mauch said. "That alternative is calling another member. It's generally not the child's fault."

"We'd like to make the public aware that child abuse is a problem that exists at all levels of society," she added, "and abusive behavior can be changed. Parents can seek help without social stigmatization. Ideally PA could be a preventive, self-help group."

To expand its membership and establish new chapters throughout the country, the national PA organization, located in Los Angeles, recently set up 10 regions within the country, explained Mrs. Mauch, who volunteered for the non-paying regional coordinator post.

PART OF Mrs. Mauch's job as regional coordinator includes efforts to establish new chapters in the tri-state area, to increase public awareness of the child abuse problem and to secure funds for the regional and local organizations, including the 20 in Michigan.

Printing and evaluation costs of the national organization is funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), Mrs. Mauch explained. HEW money does not apply to local, state or regional chapters, which rely on individual donations for financial support.

To orient Mrs. Mauch and other regional coordinators to their new jobs, PA, the Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach, The University of California, Irvine, and the Center for Health Education recently sponsored a National Conference on Child Abuse in Los Angeles.

concerned about the problem, they would have noted the item was under consideration by the board.

SCHOOL BOARD trustee George Lawton explained the reasoning behind the board's decision to place schools within subdivisions, rather than on main thoroughfares as in the past. "I don't think anyone wants to subject the students to the safety hazards of having a school located on a main road."

School board president E.J. McClendon added, "If we had built our schools in subdivisions in the past, we wouldn't have the costs of bridges and crosswalks like we do now at Bird and Gallimore schools."

Following Greenstein's exit from the meeting by an hour, Parsell appeared and reiterated Greenstein's statements.

"I want to be on record as saying this is the school board's decision and I want people to know there was no input from the township board," Parsell said.

School board treasurer Tom Yack said he would take full blame for the breakdown in communication, noting "I hold myself personally responsible." Yack said that the omission of further input from the township was not intentional.

Yack did however defend the school board's decision not to construct the road and noting that there were possible alternatives, Yack said. "If we had located somewhere else we would have given up any powers we have over those woods. If we had moved the site to another location the developers would have raped the woods like they have anything else."

"I feel I have an obligation to the rest of the Windsor Park residents. This school is going to service more than just Fleet and Arlington," Yack said.

"The regional coordinator will make the public more aware and establish chapters where there are parents having difficult relations with their children," Mrs. Mauch said. "In 99 per cent of the cases, the parent was abused as a child himself."

MRS. MAUCH outlined six forms of abuse PA recognizes: physical abuse, physical neglect, emotional abuse, emotional deprivation, verbal assault and sexual abuse.

Williams appointed to tax board

CANTON—Jerry C. Williams of 8435 Holly Drive was named to fill the third seat on the township's tax board of review. The township board appointed him last week.

Williams joins former township supervisor Phil Dingeldey and former township trustee Dick Palmer on the appellate tax body. Dingeldey and Palmer were appointed a month ago.

According to Supervisor Robert Greenstein, Williams will represent the subdivision homeowners in the township, "and should have a feel for the value of the newer houses in Canton."

The tax board reviews citizen complaints concerning assessments on real and personal property.

Woman donates mittens for Christmas presents

Mrs. Carl Hartwick of Plymouth, is getting an early start on making Christmas presents this year.

An avid knitter, she already has made 50 pairs of mittens and donated them to the Wayne-Ford Civic League to be distributed by the Westland Goodfellows to needy children. Her goal is to make 200 pairs of mittens by Christmas.

She usually knits 100 pairs each year, donating them to various charitable organizations. Last year, she donated 50 pairs to the Westland Goodfellows.

Her favorite time for knitting is during the three to five Bingo games a week which she attends. She also knits at home.

Neighbors have joined in the activity by donating yarn to Mrs. Hartwick's endeavor.

issue poses to proper medical care for Michigan citizens."

The report was submitted by Michael Dively, deputy director of the Michigan Department of Commerce, and Daniel Demlow, Commissioner of Insurance.

Demlow recommended that a medical malpractice insurance fund be established by law to:

- Assure malpractice insurance availability.
- Spread risks equitably.

"Have power to insure or re-insure policies of insurance.

The law also would establish a board of directors to manage the fund.

IN A SERIES of 30 specific recommendations, the report spells out a comprehensive course for legislative and administrative actions needed to put a cap on malpractice costs.

The recommendations range from better monitoring of medical performance to improved handling of malpractice claims by courts and lawyers.

Generally the recommendations would:

- Require better reporting of malpractice determination against doctors or health care facilities.
- Strengthen the role of the Department of Licensing and Regulation's Medical Practice Board.
- Require at least 25 hours of continuing education as a condition for medical license renewal each year.
- Increase state appropriations and hike license fees to pay for better regulation and monitoring of medical performance.
- Require greater responsibility by lawyers filing malpractice suits and petition the Michigan Supreme Court to establish contingency fee schedules (where lawyers collect a part of malpractice judgments.)
- Call for legislation to permit establishment of contractual and binding arbitration in malpractice cases.
- Better inform patients of their rights.
- Study the possibility of a sort of "no fault" system to compensate for injuries resulting from medical treatment regardless of any negligence that might be involved.

Besides costs and insurance availability, the report deals extensively with other insurance issues, legal consideration, medical practice monitoring and the total medical malpractice injury compensation system.

CANTON—Road crews cleaning up along Warren Road found a seven month old dead fetus Monday afternoon, said a spokesman for the Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol.

The fetus was discovered when Jeffery Cullen, a worker for the Wayne County Road Commission was picking up garbage near the intersection of Lotz and Warren. As he grabbed a Detective Richard Williamson said that the fetus had died well before it was deposited at the intersection.

Real estate firm charged with discrimination

By TIM RICHARD

Two years ago this week, the U.S. Justice Department announced with some fanfare it was filing suit against Real Estate One for discrimination in the sale of houses.

Since then, the case has been in front of four judges and a battery of lawyers.

But it will finally go to trial July 8 before newly-appointed Federal District Judge James Churchill in a test of open housing and employment laws involving one of Michigan's largest real estate firms.

Justice Department attorney Henry C. Hagen estimated the trial would last about six weeks. Judge Churchill set the mid-year trial date after a final pre-trial conference last week.

THE CASE is a difficult, subtle one, which may be the reason it has taken so long to come to trial and why the judges keep passing it to one another.

In essence, Real Estate One argues it has obeyed the laws and will offer its sales training programs as evidence.

The government argues that despite what may be official company policy, company personnel in practice have used a long list of methods to steer black customers out of white neighborhoods and to keep its few black employees in black areas.

With some 400 employees, Real Estate One, whose main offices are at 29700 Orchard Lake Road in Farmington, handles 4,500 sales a year. Its 26 offices are in Detroit, mostly west of Woodward, and in these suburbs: Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Farmington, Lathrup Village, Milford and Union Lake in Oakland County; Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Livonia, Plymouth, Wyandotte, Taylor and Trenton in Wayne County; and East Detroit and Brighton in neighboring counties.

A SINGLE issue was argued for a period of six months. The question was whether the government could subpoena the documents and personnel records of the four predecessor companies of Real Estate One (REOne).

REOne was formed in January of 1970 by the principals of Elsea Real Estate & Investment, 45.4 per cent; Deremo & Son, 7.1 per cent; Gordon Williamson Co., 22.5 per cent; Mathers, Stevens & Martin Inc., 21.3 per cent; and William Y. Mathers, individually, 3.7 per cent.

Judge Cornelia Kennedy, then handling the case, made a compromise ruling: She allowed the government to interrogate the officers of the predecessor firms involved in REOne, but she denied the government the chance to go on what the REOne attorney denounced as a "fishing expedition" through old records.

COURT RECORDS in the Federal Building in Detroit are already nine inches thick and overflow three folders. They were filed for the government mostly by Hagen, who works out of Washington, and for REOne by Patrick Keating and Daniel J. Henry Jr., of the firm of Wells, Wilmoth, Keating and Nitz, PC, in the Fisher Building.

Here is a summary of the charges and defense:

• The government says REOne gave instructions to sales agents that had the "purpose and effect of making residential properties in white areas unavailable to black buyers." For example, a former clerk in the REOne Lathrup office reportedly heard a salesperson advise a buyer that she (the salesperson) had to show the house to a black customer, but the owner didn't have to sell.

REOne intends to show its sales training aids and pamphlets for homeowners to prove it has attempted to abide by fair housing laws.

• The government contends the company used racial codings on records of properties for sale. The company insists that, except for four instances, it knows of no codings on its records.

• The government accuses REOne of "ruses to avoid sales to black buyers." In one Livonia instance, a black buyer was reportedly told a key to the house was unavailable. The company contends it has done nothing improper and notes it uses the fair housing logotype in its advertising.

• The government says potential black buyers were channeled to a Vinewood telephone number in Detroit and handled by black agents, while other calls were channeled to white agents. The company answers that it knows of "no specific listing" of houses available to whites or blacks.

• The government has brought in the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission as a substitute plaintiff. It says three of the four predecessor companies hired no blacks at all.

one predecessor company hired blacks only in its Detroit Fort Street office, and that REOne assigns its few black agents on the basis of race, refusing to transfer black agents to white areas.

REOne claims the U.S. code doesn't govern this case because the company isn't in interstate commerce; it denies practicing bias in the assignment of black personnel; it denies discrimination in hiring; and it says it keeps no records to indicate the race of its employees.

Suit filed against Montgomery Wards

The Wayne County Consumer Protection Agency, a division of the Prosecutor's Office, has filed a class action lawsuit charging Montgomery Wards and Co., Inc. with violations of the Federal Truth in Lending Law and the State Retail Installment Sales Act.

The suit, filed in Wayne County Circuit Court, is based on a complaint from a county citizen alleging that, in some instances, finance charges on revolving charge accounts are computed on the cash price of purchased goods and services plus accumulated finance charges—in effect, interest charged on interest.

The seven-month-old consumer agency's first class action is brought on behalf of all retail buyers who purchase at Montgomery Wards under "charge-all" or "charge-all plus" agreements and who do not always pay their full balance at the end of each billing period—thus incurring finance charges for two or more consecutive months.

IT ASKS up to $100,000 in damages for the federal violation plus, in accordance with the state violation, a possible refund of all finance charges paid by affected charge customers since Feb. 20, 1969.

The fact that interest, in effect, is sometimes charged on interest must be stated on the customer's billing, according to the suit.

In addition, the suit alleges that by figuring finance charges in this method, the annual percentage rate and the periodic rate of finance charges are being misrepresented.

The situation occurs, says the consumer agency, when a customer misses a monthly payment and new finance charges are computed on the total of the previous month's principal and finance charges.

THE SUIT also asks that Montgomery Wards clarify for all of its charge customers how much of the unpaid balance on which finance charges are computed consists of the cash sale total of goods and services, and how much of it consists of accumulated finance charges.

Richard Seid, attorney in charge of the case, said the practice may exist among other department stores.

County Bd. seeks to clear conflict

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners may seek state legislative intervention in the simmering separation-of-powers conflict between commissioners and the courts.

John Barr (D-Dearborn Heights), board vice chairman, has issued a plea for the Legislature to intervene in the wake of a Livingston County case similar to the conflict in which 20 Wayne County commissioners were sentenced to jail for contempt of court two years ago.

Nobody went to jail because a compromise settlement was reached. "The courts backed off then because Wayne County, the largest in the state, could generate so much opposition," says Barr. "But the courts are pressing the issue with Livingston County because it is smaller."

LIVINGSTON had a 1970 census of 58,967 compared to Wayne's 2.6 million.

Barr was to introduce a resolution before the full board today (Thursday) asking the Legislature to put the issue before the voters in the form of a proposed constitutional amendment "to limit the authority of the courts to order legislative bodies to appropriate public funds."

The resolution also requests legislation to restore to county commissioners the authority to bargain with all county employees, including court personnel.

The resolution could be adopted with immediate effect today if a two-thirds majority of the 27-member board agrees to consider the matter immediately. Similar resolutions are being adopted by county boards throughout the state.

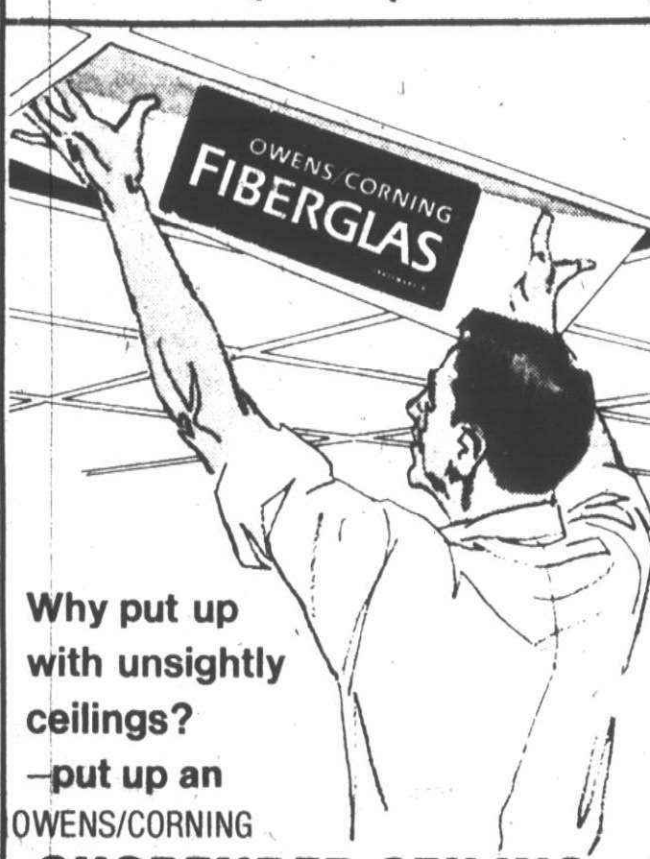

IN A 5-2 decision, a Michigan Supreme Court majority in January upheld a Livingston circuit judge in a dispute with the Livingston Board of Commissioners.

As in the 1973 Wayne County case, the court had negotiated a union contract covering circuit and district court employees, and county commissioners refused to fund it.

The majority of the State Supreme Court ruled courts have "inherent powers" to mandate expenditures for operation of the courts.

You can save on your income taxes by starting your own retirement plan now.

Your DETROIT BANK-er has information and a FREE brochure about new legislation that makes it possible for you to start your own retirement plan by opening an Individual Retirement Account at Detroit Bank & Trust.

You can save on your income taxes and start saving for retirement at the same time. Here's how the plan works:

You're eligible for an I.R.A. if you're not currently participating in a retirement plan. Any employed or self-employed person who is not currently covered by any other retirement plan is eligible to open an Individual Retirement Account (I.R.A.). If you are already covered, but have a working spouse who is not, he or she is eligible.

A tax-shelter makes your money worth more now . . . and when you retire. All contributions to your I.R.A., up to 15% of your earned income (maximum of $1,500 annually), are fully deductible.

Likewise, interest earned on your I.R.A. is exempt from income tax until it is withdrawn. When you finally do begin making withdrawals from your I.R.A., you are taxable only on the amount drawn out each year. And when you retire your effective rate of taxation will probably be lower.

If you invest $1,500 (before taxes) at the beginning of each year, here's what you could accumulate.

At the end of	With the help of a tax-sheltered I.R.A.	Without the help of a tax-sheltered I.R.A.
5 years	$ 8,861	$ 6,376
10 years	20,506	14,213
15 years	35,808	23,845
20 years	55,914	35,683
25 years	82,335	50,232
30 years	117,054	68,112

(Table assumes taxpayer is in a 25% tax bracket and all figures are based on a 5 1/2% investment return.)

If you make withdrawals before you reach age 59 1/2, unless you become permanently disabled, you must pay penalties on the amount withdrawn. Withdrawals must begin before you reach age 70 1/2. Your Detroit Bank & Trust-I.R.A. will be kept current with all present and future requirements of the Internal Revenue Service.

Make deposits as often as you like—up to $1,500 annually.

Regulations permit you to contribute a maximum of $1,500 each year, or 15% of annual wages, whichever is less. Just $25 will open your I.R.A., then it's up to you how much you want to deposit (in amounts of $25 or more) up to the maximum each year. And you can add to your account each payday, or deposit it all in one lump sum.

It only takes a few minutes to put your future in motion.

Opening an Individual Retirement Account is as easy as opening a savings account. Visit any office of Detroit Bank & Trust and ask about an Individual Retirement Account. Just $25 gets you started and your DETROIT BANK-er can set up a Check & Save automatic transfer for you so that you can make regular deposits from your checking account into your I.R.A.

Talk to your DETROIT BANK-er today about an Individual Retirement Account. It's a tax-shelter for you now and a positive step toward securing the uncertain years ahead.

Patterson urges GOP to woo independents

By EMORY DANIELS

The group once described as the "silent majority" in America may soon be re-christened "the middle column" in Michigan.

The middle column was the label given the independent voter by L. Brooks Patterson speaking to Republicans of the 15th Congressional District, which includes Westland, Garden City and Canton Township.

Patterson, Oakland County prosecutor, was guest speaker for the 15th's annual Lincoln Day Dinner Feb. 22 in the Hilton Inn near Metropolitan Airport.

PATTERSON issued a challenge for Republicans to woo the independent voter to join the GOP as the party's most representative of their concerns. To do this, he said, the party must actually share the concerns of middle column.

The Republicans are suffering from an identity crisis, but so are the Democrats. There is a growing middle party today — the independent.

In Michigan, only 18 per cent of the registered voters are Republicans. Well, I happen to believe we represent the majority view in this state, but aren't aggressively selling Republican thinking."

The message for the middle column is very simple, Patterson stressed — "The majority has rights too, and there is someone willing to stand up and fight for them."

"They have a right to see that their tax dollar isn't being squandered on junkies or by judges demanding luxury cars, that the victim of a crime will also have a day in court, and that the criminal will be punished."

THE MIDDLE COLUMN includes persons on social security and the overburdened taxpayer, who is tired of being ripped off by welfare cheaters, Patterson said.

"We can tell them we recognize their frustrations and will do something about the problems that plague them."

The welfare budget for Michigan this year is $1.6 billion, he said, adding that in the 1960s the entire state- less than $1 billion. There are now 800,000 persons in Michigan on some form of public assistance, or one in 12 residents. The welfare budget is up $100 million from last year, and that doesn't include money for food stamps.

"I'm not against welfare but am against abuses of the welfare system. There are critics using cheap slogans who say I'm against the old, poor and the black. I'm against the waste and fraud that's rampant in the system and against welfare cheaters who cheat the poor, old and the black."

The error rate in social services disbursements in Michigan is 41.6 per cent, Patterson continued. "How could a business survive on a 41.6 per cent error rate?"

"Want to know where we can get $200 million lost from state sales tax collections? It's right there in the welfare budget." California has trimmed its welfare budget by $1 billion, he continued, and it's time Republicans in Michigan led the way in the same kind of effort.

PATTERSON ALSO stated that all Oakland County residents murdered since he became prosecutor in 1972 have been killed by parolees released from prison without serving their minimum sentences.

He referred to an apology made by the State Parole Board for an error. "It's not good enough to say you are sorry when the mistake resulted in one woman being killed, another crippled for life, and two women raped," he declared.

"Any errors made should be made in favor of society and not in favor of a person already found guilty and imprisoned. It's time we begin making decisions in favor of the middle column."

"The State Republican Convention answered yes so loudly to my proposal on minimum sentencing that is vote has been heard statewide. That middle column is now looking to the Republican Party to see if we are sincere. We can't let them down."

BEFORE THE speech, Republicans at dinner tables were speculating about Patterson's political future in the party.

Some saw him as running for attorney general in 1978, especially if incumbent Frank Kelley decides to seek U.S. Sen. Philip Hart's seat. Others guessed Gov. Milliken will be the Republican candidate for U.S. Senate in '76 and Patterson will run for governor in '78. There was even speculation Patterson might be eyeing the U.S. Senate race in '76 should Milliken decide against it.

While some diners may have expected an emotional tirade from Patterson, all were treated with a bit of the young Republican's humor. He began his talk by itemizing differences between Republicans and Democrats.

"Democrats buy most books banned by someone while Republicans form censorship committees and read them as a group....Republicans employ exterminators while Democrats step on bugs....Democrats eat the fish they catch while Republicans hang them on the wall."

"Republicans sleep on twin beds, sometimes even separate rooms — and that's why there are more Democrats."

3 students take test

Three area students were among 70 competing for Presidential Scholarships in science and mathematics at a test given recently at Kalamazoo College.

The students all scored 700 or more on the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test in mathematics. They participated at their own expense in the Kalamazoo contest for five cash awards.

From this area are: Mark Davis of Livonia, from Stevenson High School; Garth McGrath of Garden City, from West Senior High School; and Lisa Anne Peterson of Livonia, from Churchill High School.

At a luncheon for the contestants Dr. William N. Hubbard Jr., president of the Upjohn Co., and Dr. George N. Rainsford, president of Kalamazoo College, were the featured speakers.

Piggy-bank money is all it takes to move into a Levitt townhome.

Maybe you don't have that big down payment money. So buying a house has been out of the question.

Not so. Levitt has a plan that lets you move in now and they'll save up your down payment for you. Here's how it works.

If you can qualify for a mortgage on the townhouse of your choice, and if you can put just a couple of hundred dollars down; Levitt's plan can work for you! Say your monthly payment turns out to be $273 per month. That's what it would be if you bought The Discover in Lake Village. And that's what your rental might be right now. Well, all those $273 payments you make each month are put in an escrow account until the full down payment is accumulated. You can have months of great living in a brand new home, while you pile up that down payment. When you reach the required amount, you take title to your home.

Easy. Does it make sense to pay rent when your monthly outlay can be put toward real estate of your own?

Come out to Lake Village and let our salesman put the facts into a smart computer. It will take just about two minutes to see if this plan is for you. Get your personal information on how to buy now with just "piggy-bank" money.

Column starts next week

Gundella to debut as writer

Over the years, Gundella the Witch has been a school teacher, story-teller, party entertainer, college lecturer and proud mother of four.

Next week the great witch from Garden City begins a new phase of her career—as a columnist for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. "Witch Watch" begins Thursday, March 13, and her first topic will be ghosts.

Gundella doesn't believe in magic. "It's power—and you have the power within you," she insists. What she will do is teach people who think they are ordinary to use the powers within themselves, powers that are sometimes called "supernatural" only because scientists can't understand them yet.

THE JOLLY witch bounced across her living room (Gundella doesn't walk—she bounces) as she talked about her column ideas.

A simple one is the use of a pendulum as a sex detector. "Farmers use this to tell if an egg will produce a hen or a rooster. They prefer to hatch hens," she said.

Planchets, those moving platforms which point to letters, are another method of tapping "the power within you," she said.

Talismans...charms...amulets...teas...herbs...precognition with tea leaves, candle wax and tarot cards: Gundella is acquainted with them all.

She does little with astrology, however, although she has a better than average knowledge of the zodiac signs. She's a Gemini, like Sen. Hubert Humphrey and Observer & Eccentric Co-Publisher Philip Power.

Some columns will answer readers' questions if they are of general interest. Write to her at Box 434, Garden City Mich. 48135. (If you want a personal answer, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Or you can just sit back and read her views about reincarnation, out-of-body travel, love spells and controlling your own "vibrations."

"I'M NOT a demonologist or devil worshiper," says Gundella, who has spoken to enthusiastic audiences in church-related schools and even taught a Sunday school Bible study class in a suburban Protestant church.

Descended from the so-called "green witches" of Scotland, she sometimes colors her face green for appearances—hence, the dark appearance of her skin in the photo. She has been active in a coven since her induction in 1948 at the age of 18.

Long a teacher in the Southgate, South Rockwood and Inkster districts, she left classroom teaching in 1970 when she began to win public popularity lecturing and conducting workshops on witchcraft.

Gundella has bachelor's and master's degrees from Wayne State and Eastern Michigan universities, respectively, and has a thorough knowledge of standard psychology and literature. She sees no conflict between them and witchcraft.

Gundella has taught 38 workshops everywhere from Oakland University in Rochester, Birmingham Seaborn High School, Troy (she has lots of fans in Troy), Farmington's Holiday Inn, Southfield, a church in Bloomfield Hills, to Plymouth's Mayflower Meeting House and private groups in Livonia, Redford and Westland.

HER CHILDREN are growing up, meanwhile.

Gundella bounced across the room (she always bounces) to get a picture of her oldest son, who has temporarily given up the idea of being a symphony conductor. Jim Mulleague (his stage name) has joined Rick Underwood (who studied Shakespearean drama) in a Laurel and Hardy imitation. Jim plays the Hardy role. The routine began at a costume party, and they have expanded it to a regular act at commercial shows, telethons, nightclubs and television commercials.

Daughter Madilynne (witch name: Lydamie) is a quarter-year away from a degree in journalism at Wayne State. She acts as Gundella's secretary and typist.

Sixth grader Johnny is a safety patrol boy and avid Tiger fan. Veronica Ann, 10, loves working in the school's instructional materials center and swimming.

GUNDELLA ALMOST went on national tours, but two dreams helped change her mind and keep her in southeast Michigan.

"A fellow came to me with a promotion idea last April. I would travel all over the United States and make $80,000 a year. I was all ready to go, but then I had two dreams.

"First, I was at a party. When it came time to go, I couldn't find my coat...I was wearing it.

"Then, I dreamed I was in Detroit, and I couldn't find my car. The reason was that I was already in it."

"The messages were the same. Both times I was looking for something I already had."

And so Gundella is staying here and becoming a columnist in the Observer & Eccentric for her friends and neighbors.

We need to break some old economic habits

As the weather gradually gets pleasanter and as auto sales slowly start to inch upward, people are actually starting to talk about things getting better.

But "better" cannot mean a return to normal here in the auto capital of the world — "Normality" meaning years of continued American dependency on big cars, with output again rising to early 1970s levels.

The entire nature of this region's industrial base has been changed — irretrievably and drastically changed — by the events of the past two years, and it would be tragic if the movers and shakers of this area did not realize it and seize the opportunity to adjust to a new course.

THE ARAB OIL boycott and price gouge have fundamentally altered the nature of energy availability and price. The oil cartel may fall apart after a while, and America may gradually become self-sufficient in energy, but that energy will be available only at lower volumes and higher prices than for the past 30 years.

The federal government is now regulating the automobile industry, just as it regulates the airlines or the radio and TV stations. The government may relax the clean air requirements for a while to give the auto companies engineering time and financial room to tool up for lighter cars that consume less gas, but that which the government gives it can just as easily take away.

Observation Point

by PHILIP H. POWER

Auto sales will probably improve slightly as this year goes on and almost certainly be much better in 1976. But the public interest in mass transit is only a symptom of the deeper realization that our society's past reliance on the traditional automobile has entailed massive costs that are only now becoming apparent.

TIMES, IN ONE gigantic lurch, have changed. And whether Michigan in general and the Detroit area in particular are doomed to a decay such as the textile towns of New England experienced after times also changed in the early years of this century is largely in the hands of the men and women who built our economic base — the automobile industry — to greatness.

All the requirements to meet and overcome the challenges of these changing times exist here in the Detroit area. We have the managerial expertise and perhaps the nation's largest pool of skilled workers. We have the creative engineers, the hard-bitten plant managers, the careful financial analysts. And we have the leaders of the UAW, certainly the least parochial and most broadly concerned union in the country.

And we have, I desperately hope, the remains of that raw, brawling, hammering spirit that characterized the area in the '40s and the '50s and made Detroit the self-confident, throbbing arsenal of democracy.

THE POINT is that this entire region has before it a gigantic choice: To seek by ingrained force of habit to return to the good old days of the traditional auto industry, which I believe inevitably will result in slow, certain stagnation, or to re-deploy the resources available here in such profusion before they slither away to construct an altered economic base to meet the needs of tomorrow, which I think is the only way this area can evolve and grow.

It won't be easy, because breaking past habits is always hard. It will take time and very broadly spread effort, because wrenching a whole region to cope with new problems is very, very difficult.

But there is no necessary reason it cannot be done.

The governor and the area's mayors should recognize it, and call together the planners and thinkers of our state to analyze our new opportunity.

The Legislature and the federal government should realize it, and start thinking how to break new ground in taxation and social services and mass transit to enable business to invest in new ways for a changed world.

The labor, corporate and financial leaders of this area should be aware that their long term self-interest dictates it, and begin exploring ways to work together to overcome our challenge.

What is at issue is no less than a complete overhaul of the industrial base of Michigan to take account of today's and tomorrow's realities. What is at stake is no less than the continued growth and survival of this entire region.

Young wages fight for 19th century and water 'to a hippie. Control money. Control jobs. Here's how Young's principles work:

WATER—The water department, begun as a city utility, has been expanded to include 80 communities, including all in this newspaper's circulation area. Logically, we should be thinking in terms of making it a multi-county authority, perhaps under the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

Young is going in the opposite direction, however. In Detroit's old charter, the board had four Detroit members and three suburban residents. The new charter, which took effect last July 1, specifies that "at least four members of the board must be residents of Detroit." McNamara notes that this gives Young the power to make all seven appointments from Detroit.

McNamara also notes that the Detroit water board spreads capital improvement costs for City of Detroit projects over the entire water service area, which means suburbanites pick up about two-thirds of the costs of Detroit's benefits, but Detroit contributes nothing to suburban expansion. Control money. Control jobs.

PARKS—Although Detroiters get their fair share of usage of the nine metroparks run by the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority, Detroit politicians have lamented—with some justification—that HCMA parks were developed too far into the hinterlands of the five-county area.

So HCMA's director, David Laidlaw, proposed about two years ago that HCMA take over and operate Detroit's deteriorating Belle Isle, a truly regional facility. Certainly, that would benefit at-least inner city residents and ease the pressure on Detroit's budget.

So far, Young has never said yes or no to the proposal and has, in fact, behaved as if it didn't exist. His idea is that HCMA should simply write him a check for the operation of Belle Isle. Just the other day, Councilman Emma Henderson, a Young henchperson, complained she hadn't seen any HCMA money yet.

Well, it'll be a cold day in hell before HCMA turns over its cash to Detroit. If HCMA is to spend money on Belle Isle, then its directors should continue to insist that they run the show so that everyone in the five-county area paying the taxes gets an equal crack at recreation and parks jobs.

ON OTHER ISSUES it's the same.

Young's administration talks about a Detroit-only transit system, when it's as obvious as the nose on your face that a transit system must be multi-county... Detroit, with half or less of Wayne County's population, controls two-thirds or more of the seats on the Commission on the Aging... The Juvenile Facilities Network is a topic on which County Commissioner Dumas will talk your ear off; don't laugh at Mary because she's a female; she's been there... The Wayne County executive issue...

It took a heroic effort on Great Britain's part to admit it was no longer one of the super powers, but British politicians quit gumming up the international works and eased problems at home once they adjusted their egos to economic and geographic realities.

Governmental services in southeast Michigan will be more efficient once Detroit and its 19th century mayor realize they're no longer the London of an undeveloped and subservient empire.

Sense And Nonsense

One wonders when, if ever, members of the special police division of the Livonia Civil Defense unit will learn how to handle parking and the public at events which attract capacity crowds.

A prime example was the way the "Keystone Kops" operated at the regional basketball tournament Tuesday night at Franklin High.

Inasmuch as the game involved two teams from inner city, it was known in advance that it was not going to be a sellout and thus there would be ample parking in the lot nearest the gym.

That is, it was known to all but the members of the "Keystone Kops" who blocked off the entrances well in advance of the game and ordered all persons arriving after 7:45 p.m. to drive around the school and park there.

This involved walking almost a quarter of a mile completely around the school since the gym is located on the opposite side from where late arrivals were forced to park.

Imagine how these basketball fans felt when they walked around the building alongside the rear parking lot and saw plenty of parking spaces.

There is such a thing as using common sense. Apparently all the special policemen thought of was blocking the lanes leading into the parking lot, doing a lot of nonsensical talking over their walkie-talkies, flashing their pistols on their hips and making things miserable for as many as 100 drivers.

Perhaps it's too bad that the "specials" aren't under the jurisdiction of the Livonia Police Department... maybe they would then learn how to deal with the public, how to handle crowds at well attended events and how to control a parking lot.

We realize the value of walkie-talkies, but it seems to us the "Keystone Kops" are trying to put on a radio show with all of their talking back and forth.

One down and how many to go? That's the question administrators of St. Mary Hospital are trying to get answered after seeing a highly respected member of the medical staff depart for Colorado because of high malpractice insurance rate he would have had to pay this year in Michigan.

It all came to light Monday when it was learned Dr. Lewis Sonda, a member of the hospital staff since 1962 who had a wide practice in communities surrounding the institution, had given up his office, notified his patients he no longer would be available, sold his house and moved to Colorado over the weekend.

Why Colorado? Dr. Sonda had kept his license alive in that state even while practicing in Michigan. He had been a member of the St. Mary staff for 13 years and was a highly respected urologist.

But now he is gone because he couldn't afford to pay the high premium for malpractice insurance.

His associates said Dr. Sonda was faced with an increase to $24,000 annually with $2,500 deductible. He said he wouldn't pay that premium even if he could afford it and notified the hospital administration of his decision.

This is a sad situation, one that every person in the area should be made aware of. Anyone who has a family doctor could lose him at any time.

This isn't idle talk. The doctors have been told of the tremendous increases in the malpractice insurance rates, and almost to a man they say they can't pay them.

One doctor we know, a prominent member of the St. Mary staff, told us very candidly he couldn't pay thousands of dollars for such insurance and still exist. "I guess most people believe doctors wind up the year with thousands of dollars in their pockets," he said. "That's far from true with me. I don't make that kind of money, I have a family to support and I can't pay such high premiums for malpractice insurance.

Insurance costs claim first casualty

R. T. Thompson writes

"At the same time I don't feel I should raise the rates to all of my patients to cover this additional cost. I'll quit first."

Having known this doctor personally since he is our family doctor, I know he'll do what he says. And that will be a tremendous loss to his hundreds of patients who have the same faith in him that we do.

This situation is getting worse by the day, and it's time for all voters to get after their legislators in Lansing and demand that something be done and done quickly.

Otherwise doctors are going to quit just as Dr. Sonda did. It might be well to recall that the entire staff of anesthetists at St. Mary Hospital notified the staff six weeks ago that they would leave as a unit for a state where malpractice insurance and malpractice suits aren't as great as in Michigan.

We can tell you they are not fooling.

A recession wipes out many social status gains

A downturn in the business economy can be the death knell of many social programs.

During the last several years Congress has passed many affirmative action laws, encouraging the hiring of minorities, women, handicapped workers and returning veterans.

In each case, when new employees were hired, the new laws subtly or directly encouraged employers to hire persons of a different type than he had been hiring in the past so they would have an employee mix similar to the population mix.

This caused great concern in many quarters because, when hiring or promotion opportunities opened, instead of the best man or woman being hired or promoted, some people got the job because they helped fill out a hiring quota.

LAWSUITS WERE started, claiming reverse discrimination, which usually got short shrift from the courts because of the nation's commitment for equal employment opportunities.

But, with the downturn in the economy, very few employers are hiring new people. Not only are they not hiring people, but they are laying them off.

Because many of the people recently hired to conform with the affirmative action laws have not had time to establish much seniority, they fall heir to being among the first to be laid off, which could completely destroy the so-called affirmative action gains that have been made over the last couple of years.

Eccentricities

by HANK HOGAN

In a few cases, courts have stepped in and ordered companies not to lay off those hired to fill out one of the affirmative action quotas. In these cases, this has resulted in older, more senior workers being the first to go, which certainly has not helped public support of the affirmative action programs.

LABOR UNIONS have been battling because their contracts protect the more senior workers.

There is an economic impact, too, because some of the people hired in compliance of the affirmative action laws are not family breadwinners or in economic need of the job, while other senior heads-of-households find themselves without jobs.

Of course, there is no ready answer because there is equity for both points of view, but it does prove that social progress often can make inroads only in times of prosperity.

UNRA defends code stand

Editor:

In an emotional editorial published Feb. 27, the position of the United Northwestern Realty Association regarding the proposed city certification program for the City of Detroit was questioned.

It is our feeling the position statement of UNRA was not accurately interpreted by a member of the editorial staff. The initial inconsistency borne in the editorial indicates total opposition by UNRA to any city certification program. Such is not the case. In truth, the association has and is now searching for a viable inspection and certification ordinance.

The editorial does not mention, for example, that many cities—in fact, most cities—do not require city certifications. Does their lack of certification mean that those cities are any less progressive or their properties any less salable? In truth, most cities have found that certifications may not even be necessary.

The cities of Livonia, Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham, Farmington, Northville, Plymouth, Southfield, Wayne, West Bloomfield and Westland are prime examples. They do not have city certifications and do not have city inspections on used homes, and yet no one can successfully argue that these communities are not progressive or salable. However, all of these things are unimportant. What is important is what the UNRA is supporting.

UNRA wishes to raise the quality of housing. We wish to provide everyone with safe, economical and sensible dwellings for generations to come. Hastily written ordinances with an eye only on solutions for today that will not stand the test of time are not in the best interest of our citizenry. A certification ordinance which does not place an excessive burden upon the buyer or the seller is in order. A revitalization of the city is in order. Equity rather than liability is in order. Occupancy rather than abandonment is in order. Therefore, our urgency and our position are the ultimate protection of the consumers, whomever they may be.

It was with these intentions that we approached the Detroit Council and encouraged them to reconsider this ordinance in its present form. It is not a city certification ordinance that we oppose, but an ordinance which would not protect the buyer or the seller which caused concern.

READERS FORUM

Letters must be original copies and contain the signature and address of the sender. Limit letters to 300 words.

UNRA is actively working with members of the Detroit Council, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, Federal Housing Administration and interested consumer groups in an attempt to perfect a viable city certification program. These groups have all recognized a drastic need for a viable solution to tomorrow's problems, and they have jointly gathered together in an attempt to solve one of the city's most serious problems.

These groups have jointly agreed that the ordinance in question would not answer Detroit's housing problem. A similar ordinance which was to go into effect in Dearborn ended in a judicial review and was seriously amended. We wish to avoid judicial review and are attempting to construct an ordinance inclusive of city certification which would ultimately serve all the citizens of Detroit.

Additionally, we propose that city officials demand immediate federal action to stop mortgage foreclosures where possible. We also propose that the City of Detroit Housing Commission create low interest loans and grants for code enforcement in specific areas and to those people unable to do this for themselves. It is our understanding that the commission has already been empowered to do so.

UNRA also encourages the FHA to reconsider its present financing procedure in light of the suggested two-tiered appraisal which would supply the financing for repairs and improvements. UNRA does not oppose raising the quality of used houses in Detroit nor is it so moved to level objections through suburbia. It is regrettable that this intention was conveyed by a staff member of your paper whom we suspect was not even in attendance at the public hearing at which our position was made.

The news media have a responsibility to report the truth in all matters, and if this creates more work in investigation, that too is their responsibility. To allude that Realtors of our multi-list encourage the decline of Detroit for profit motive is shameful reporting. They are in the business of selling real estate and are not the investors who buy this sort of property. And if investigated, the truth is the auction sales of HUD property have failed miserably.

The editor then suspects black containment. Again, it was the black community, including our member black Realtors, who also strongly opposed this ordinance for what it would do to their people.

We feel that your paper owes the public an apology for the harm done by this irresponsible reporting.

JERRY J. ROZEMA, President
United Northwestern Realty Association, Farmington Hills

EDITOR'S NOTE: The editorial by Emory Daniels was an honest expression of opinion and clearly labeled as such. Its tone was quite the opposite of "emotional." Daniels' source of background information was UNRA's own news release which it entitled "Area's Largest Realty Group Opposes Council's Home Inspection Ordinance." The editor will no more apologize for presenting Daniels' coolly reasoned views than for allowing Rozema space for his views.

Medical artist is recognized

Editor:

Can I be mistaken? Isn't the artist Patricia Beach Smith describes as "wildlife artist" the highly respected Robert Thom of the "How Medicine Began" series?

Certainly every man, woman, and child has stopped in his tracks to observe his paintings—prints of which hang or stand in just about every drug store window, pharmacy counter, or doctor's waiting rooms.

His paintings covered the age of medicine from the days of the pharaohs to modern day's highly technological medical advances. The one that stands clearly in my mind is the scene of a country doctor (circa early 1900s) with stethoscope pressed lightly against a young lad's bare chest. The doctor, sitting on a wooden kitchen chair, eyes canted; the lad naked to his toes with backside to the viewer; and the mother standing apprehensively in the background.

Artist Thom managed to capture the whole tender impact of the moment!

Next time you're in your local drug store, take time to study the story his paintings so graphically depict.

Thanks anyway for a story that gave us another slant on Mr. Thom's life.

Smith and Taylor urge 1975 census

Wayne County Commissioners Royce E. Smith (D-Belleville) and Tom F. Taylor (D-Westland) have co-sponsored a resolution in support of state legislation enabling local communities to request a 1975 census and thus gain a larger share of state revenues.

The resolution was introduced at a Feb. 20 board meeting and has been referred to the General Government Committee for study and recommendation.

The resolution urges enactment of identical bills introduced as House Bill 4172 by Rep. Thomas Brown (D-Westland) and Senate Bill 126 by five senators including William Faust (D-Westland) and Carl Pursell (R-Plymouth).

The legislation would enable cities and townships to request the Secretary of State to conduct a special mid-decade census of the population of the locality making the request. Counties, villages and other political subdivisions which receive state funds on a per capita basis could also request a 1975 population count.

"This is probably the most important piece of legislation, in terms of western Wayne County, in this session of the legislature," declared Smith, whose district includes Plymouth and Canton Township. "All of western Wayne County has gained substantially in population.

Taylor's district includes Garden City and part of Westland.

Bike Days announced

Bicycling enthusiasts will have four special days this year to pedal along Edward Hines Drive.

That announcement was made recently by Rep. John F. Markes (D-Westland), whose district includes Livonia. Markes announced the four Saturdays, approved by the Wayne County Road Commission, are: May 3, June 7, Sept. 6, and Oct. 4.

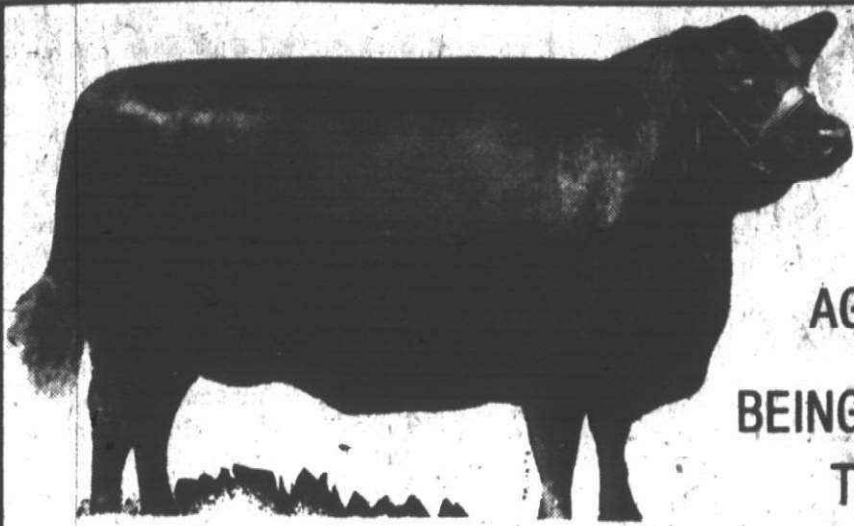

Hines Drive will be closed to motor traffic for the 11-mile stretch between Ford and Haggerty roads during these events. The hours of closing will be from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Markes, who has been involved in Bike Days for several years, says: "This is an opportunity for bicyclists to have four full days of safe cycling enjoyment. It is a day of fun for the entire family."

Rep. Smith proposes state pay land taxes

State Rep. Roy Smith (R-Ypsilanti) has proposed a law which would require the state partially to reimburse local governments for taxes lost on state-owned land.

Under Smith's proposal, the state would pay the county treasurer an amount equal to 25 per cent of the taxes due on the property. The county treasurer would distribute proportionate amounts to local units of government, said Smith, whose district includes most of Plymouth.

'They're off'-- DRC strike settled, Saturday start set

The war is over. Peace has been declared and the bleak, dark days are over at the Detroit Race Course. All of which means the track management and Local 79 of the Building Services Employees International Union have reached agreement on a two-year contract and racing will open Saturday at the big mile track in Livonia.

The familiar cry of "They're off" will sound shortly after 2 p.m. and Michigan's 1975 thoroughbred racing season will finally open after a 13-day delay.

The 13 days are lost. There isn't any way of making them up but the horses, which have been working out daily at the track since mid-January, will finally get started.

INASMUCH as the opening 33 days were tagged as an early meet, the horses won't be of the same caliber of those expected in April but at least there will be racing and that's what the thousands of thoroughbred fans have been awaiting.

Originally slated to open on Feb. 21, the meeting was delayed pending the outcome of negotiations between the union, which represents 400 mutual clerks, and the track management.

The two were at a deadlock as late as last Saturday when a state labor mediator was sent in with instructions to make the teams negotiate until they reached an agreement.

The result was a marathon session Monday at a downtown Detroit hotel where the teams apparently made some progress. The session resumed Tuesday at noon and an agreement was reached shortly after 1:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Meanwhile at the track, realizing the situation was more promising than at any other time, Racing Director Tom Dorsey and assistant Bob Clark late Tuesday afternoon were busy calling horsemen to enter races for Friday and Saturday... just in case the deadlock ended.

It seems they knew what they were doing since the Saturday program will go as arranged and the racing secretary's office was a busy place Wednesday morning with entries being accepted for Monday.

TERMS OF the agreement were not announced although it was learned the union had agreed to a two-year contract with the Detroit Racing Association and Wolverine Raceway.

Whether the same contract was agreed to by representatives of the Hazel Park tracks and Jackson Raceway isn't known. Reports are representatives of the other tracks sat in on all of the negotiations since they started back in early January.

There will not be Sunday racing at the early meeting. DRA vice president and general manager Dick Wilson said Sunday racing will begin on April 6.

Saturday's program will have a post time of 2 p.m. with 10 races. Weekday races will start at 3 p.m. with a nine-race card.

During the early meeting, the track will only open the two clubhouses and the mezzanine floor of the grandstand. Admission will be through the gates at the new clubhouse with a $2 fee.

Wilson said betting lines will be opened on both levels of the new clubhouse and the only level of the terrace clubhouse.

The mezzanine betting ring will be open only on Saturdays and holidays during the early meeting which will be limited to 20 days by the loss of the first 13 due to the negotiations.

Although some of the 800 horses stabled on the grounds took off last week for Thistledown Race Track in Cleveland, Dorsey says he has more than enough for the daily programs and expects many more stables to check in.

"We notified many stables Wednesday that the contract had been approved; pending a vote of the union members," said Dorsey. "We did lose a few stables but we're looking for others to come in from Florida and Louisiana now that racing is starting."

Meanwhile, union officials indicated they planned to call a meeting of members to ratify the proposed contract. They expected little opposition.

So, it will be "They're off" Saturday afternoon and racing fans can settle down to a lengthy season that continues through the middle of December.

Rocks rip Thurston -- Denby next

By FRED DeLANO

A coveted berth in the quarter-finals of the state Class A basketball championship will hang in the balance Friday night when Plymouth Salem meets Detroit Denby for the regional crown at Livonia Franklin.

The Rocks reached the doorstep of the first regional title in the school's history by trouncing Thurston High of South Redford, 69-51, in Wednesday night's semifinal. Denby's Tars had eliminated Detroit Murray-Wright 24 hours earlier, 79-70.

Big Eric Agardy, whose 25 points brought him a one-season Plymouth scoring record of 420 points, teamed with 6-8 Jim Ellinghausen to lead the way for the Rocks both in scoring and on the backboards against Thurston.

THE 6-10 AGARDY grabbed 14 rebounds and Ellinghausen 12 as Plymouth led in that department, 37-

18. With Ellinghausen chipping in 18 points, the Rocks never trailed after breaking a 2-2 tie in the opening moments.

They led 17-10 at the quarter, 39-24 at halftime and by 19 points, 57-38, after three periods. By that time it was all over but the shouting.

Plymouth simply was too huge physically for the Eagles, who had advanced to the regional plateau by winning their first district title ever. Although they gave it a full shot and battled all the way, the Eagles were outgunned and outreached.

Cory Rodriguez, 6-1, paced Thurston with 14 points and 6-3 Dave Polidori added 10 as the only Eagles in double figures.

"If Plymouth plays the way they did tonight, they'll beat Denby," said Thurston coach Bill Crouteau after congratulating the victors. "But let me tell you this—these are the greatest kids in the state at Thurston. We've come a long way, and winning the district was our greatest moment."

COACH FRED Thomann of Plymouth ducked making any prediction on how his 20-2 club will fare Friday, but conceded that this is the first time all season the Rocks have faced a team of equal size. "They're the biggest we've faced, and no one has to tell us what a key game it is," he added.

The Tars will match the 6-10 Agardy, who is a prime all-state candidate, with their own 6-10 Stuart House, who pumped in 31 points against Murray-Wright. In Rudolph Watley, the run-and-shoot Tars also have a gunner and rebounder who can stand head-to-head with Ellinghausen.

The winner of this battle will move on to face the champion from the Birmingham Seaholm regional on Thursday, March 13 in the quarter-finals. Denby has a 12-8 record for the season and the showdown with Plymouth will start at 8 p.m. before what promises to be a standing room only crowd.

Although Thurston had a good night at the free throw line against the Rocks, hitting 11 of 13, the Eagles were outshot from the floor, 29 field goals to 20. Plymouth hit at a 49 per cent clip, Agardy leading with 12 out of 19, and Thurston 37 per cent.

"The big guy was just super inside," praised Thomann, "and they all did what they had to do—like Danny Moore with 10 assists to go with his 10 points. Bill Crouteau was right when he said his kids were twice as good as they were early in the season. We're glad to get over that one."

Denby eliminates Pilots

Detroit Murray Wright's hopes of becoming the 1975 Michigan Class A basketball champion vanished like so much snow on a warm spring day.

The Pilots, heavy favorite to advance to the finals after the upset of Detroit Cass Tech last week, couldn't cope with a scrappy Denby quintet which took an early lead and held it all the way for a 79-70 victory in Tuesday's regional action at Livonia Franklin.

It was the ninth straight victory for the Tars who handled their Detroit rival just as easily as they had their competition in the Livonia Stevenson district meet last week.

Denby moved ahead early with a 11-6 margin thanks to some fancy shooting by big Stuart House, the 6-10 center, and Ray Bradley.

It was the scoring of Bob King, a sharpshooting forward who wound up the evening with 39 points, that kept the Pilots within range most of the first half.

Denby held a 31-22 edge with three minutes on the clock when King scored five straight points to make it 33-26.

KING HIT AGAIN but Denby answered with four quick points in the final minute to walk off the court with a 38-29 lead.

The Pilots tightened their pressing full court defense at the start of the second half and King flipped in six points to whittle the margin to 42-35.

Once again Denby broke loose and widened the gap to 15 points, at 50-35.

Then it was Murray Wright's turn and they stormed back within five points at 52-47 and appeared on their way only to have the Tars regain their composure and hold a 57-49 three quarter lead.

Twice Murray Wright was within five points in the final three minutes. Each time Denby answered the challenge with a couple of field goals and finally paraded to the free throw line for eight consecutive conversions that killed off Murray Wright.

House put in the clincher when he converted four for four in the closing 30 seconds, giving his team an 11-point edge that couldn't be touched.

Now Denby swings into the championship game Friday at 8 against the winner of the Plymouth Salem-Thurston contest.

That winner advances to next week's quarterfinals.

O&E names sports editor

Like father, like son. That's the story of the new sports editor of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers in Wayne County.

TOM SCHRAM

Thomas Schram, son of the popular Harold Schram, of the Detroit Free Press sports department, has been named sports editor of the Livonia-Redford-Garden City-Plymouth-Westland-Canton editions. He succeeds Thomas Donoghue who left the employ of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers last week.

Schram started with the O&E last July as a general assignment reporter in Livonia and then was transferred to Birmingham as a sports writer and coordinator in September.

Now he is being transferred back to the Livonia central headquarters in his new assignment.

Tom will have charge of all sports in the Wayne County division of the O&E, handling items from 13 high schools in all varsity sports. In addition he will have the responsibility for coverage of golf, tennis, baseball and basketball, other than high school, and any other sports news generated in the six communities.

Schram joined the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers after attending Wayne State University where he served as sports editor of the South End, the college newspaper, as a sophomore and junior and then took over as editor in his senior year.

Tom is a native of Detroit and a graduate of DeLaSalle Collegiate high school.

He brings years of experience in sports writing to his new post, having worked with his father on numerous assignments during his years in high school and college.

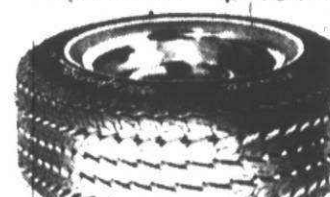

Schram took over his new duties Monday and would be happy to meet any and all coaches who happen to drop by the office at the intersection of Levan and Schoolcraft in Livonia.

Golden Gloves finalists have 'lot in common'

Livonia's Danny Marderosian and Westland's John O'Neill have more in common than their 106 pound weight and good right hands.

DANNY MARDEROSIAN

JOHN O'NEILL

troit flyweight championships Friday when the Southeastern Michigan Golden Gloves tournament is held at the State Fairgrounds Friday night beginning at 8 pm.

O'Neill will be fighting in the "A" classification, reserved for boxers who wish to become eligible for the Gloves' prestigious "Tournament of Champions" to be held later this month in Knoxville, Tennessee. Marderosian will compete in the "E" classification, for fighters of lesser experience.

BOTH O'NEILL, A 16 year-old sophomore at John Glenn High School and Marderosian, a 16 year-old sophomore at Bentley, are continuing training for the Golden Gloves, which annually brings together the nation's best amateur pugilists.

O'Neill spars daily at the Kronk Recreation Center in Detroit and also works extensively on the bags and skipping rope.

"I'm in shape now," O'Neill said. "I'm really focusing on this tournament and a chance to get to Knoxville for the United States championships."

O'Neill has fought nine times since December, winning each bout. His latest victory was an impressive decision over Canadian Golden Gloves flyweight champion Mike Henry last weekend in Toronto.

"That decision did a lot to help my confidence because it was a unanimous decision and because being Canadian national champion carries with it a good reputation," O'Neill said.

O'Neill was named the outstanding American boxer at the tournament, another factor which makes him a heavy favorite to win his bout over Highland Park's Angelo Smith. O'Neill's opponent in Friday night's finals.

MARDEROSIAN ALSO WILL carry an impressive background into his bout with Clyde Hillman of Leamington, Ontario. As a 15 year-old, Marderosian captured the Michigan Junior Olympic championship in the 95 pound weight class.

Marderosian took the Junior Olympic title by beating two fighters out of the Kronk Recreation Center on the same night but was defeated in regional competition in Ohio.

"I feel that I'm in super shape. I usually run four miles every day. I don't really know anything about my opponent, but I'm confident I can win," said Marderosian.

O'Neill has 14 victories under his belt and Marderosian has 11 while both have suffered four defeats. At 106 pounds, both will go into their bouts six pounds under the limit.

STILL ANOTHER THING the two fighters have in common is a future goal. Both hope to represent the United States in the 1976 Olympic Games at Montreal.

And if things go as planned, each will also have a region Golden Gloves title on Saturday morning.

Two Spartans make all-loop

Two Livonia Stevenson High School basketball standouts were named to the all-league team by coaches from the Inter-Lakes League and a third was placed on the second team.

Forward Dave Haberman, who sported an 11.4 scoring average this season and guard Jim Gilland, who led the Spartans to the district finals against Detroit Denby, were accorded first team status.

Guard Rob Rose was named to the second team.

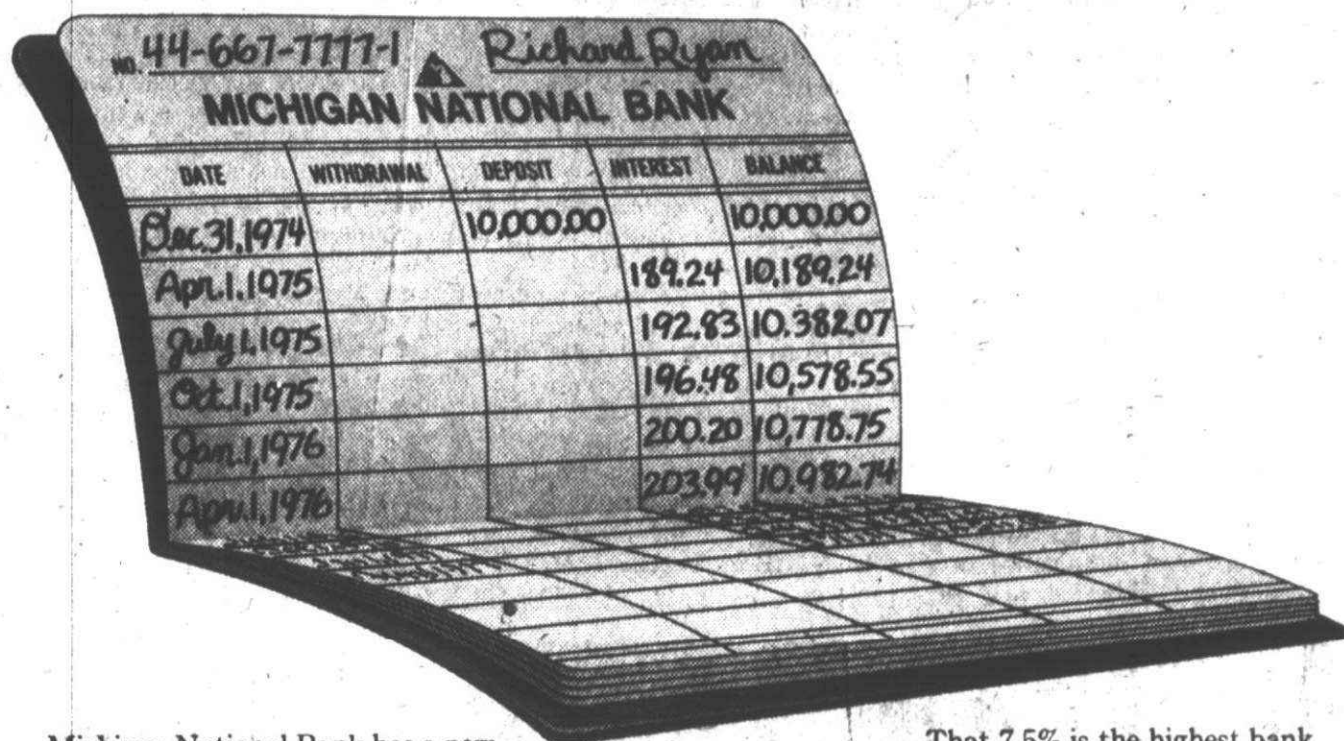

Are coaching

Former Michigan State football performers Henry Bullough, Tom Yewcic, John Polonchek and Rollie Dotsch are members of the New England Patriots coaching staff under Chuck Fairbanks, another ex-Spartan.

MSU is 12th

Michigan State's football team in 1974 made the top 20 in final major wire service polls for the first time since 1966. State was ranked 12th by AP and 18th by UPI.

Bentley, Franklin bounced as tourney opens

By TOM SCHRAM

The Michigan High School Athletic Association kicked off its inaugural state hockey tournament Tuesday, but Livonia Bentley coach Mike Dudley didn't feel much like celebrating the occasion. His team was decisively eliminated from the tournament, 10-3 by Ann Arbor Huron.

"We just ran into a good team tonight—a better team," said Dudley who saw the home ice of Ford Arena work to little advantage for his club.

In other opening action involving local teams, Franklin dropped a 5-1 decision to Trenton and Churchill brought home the area's only winner, edging Allen Park 4-3 in regional play at Wyandotte.

In the other game at Ford, Ann Arbor Pioneer clobbered Jackson Lumen-Christi, 10-2.

IN HURON, BENTLEY was up against a team of intimidating size and strength and fell behind early 3-0.

Tim Levenson opened the scoring at 3:02, beating Bulldog goalie Kevin Stachelski unassisted on what appeared to be an easy chance for the netminder.

Seconds later Drew Manville beat Stachelski cleanly from close in to put the River Rats up 2-0.

Bentley, a traditionally slow starting team, did not get its first shot on goal until Glenn Stevens whistled a shot at Huron goalie Kurt Wieland at the 8:52 mark. Wieland caught the low shot, however, and on the ensuing faceoff, Ann Arbor's Pete Shipman skated the length of the ice and beat Stachelski on a hard, rising shot to give the River Rats a three goal margin.

The Bulldogs didn't quit. Stevens finally put them on the board, taking a perfect pass from Bentley captain Dave Manoogian in a power play situation.

BENTLEY ALMOST MADE a game of it when Tom McLean pushed the puck across the goal in a scramble at the 4:40 mark of the second period to pull the Bulldogs within one goal. But things were all downhill from there as Huron tallied just 18 seconds later to restore the two goal margin.

Stan Delabbio's power play goal at 13:55 of the second period made it 6-3.

Huron built the margin to 8-3 through the third period and then scored two goals in the final 35 seconds to end things.

Huron out-shot Bentley 50-28 for the night and the River Rats were penalized 20 minutes compared to 12 for Bentley.

Part of the problem for Bentley, which closed its season at 11-7, was that one of its regulars was out with a tendon pull and another was withheld for disciplinary reasons.

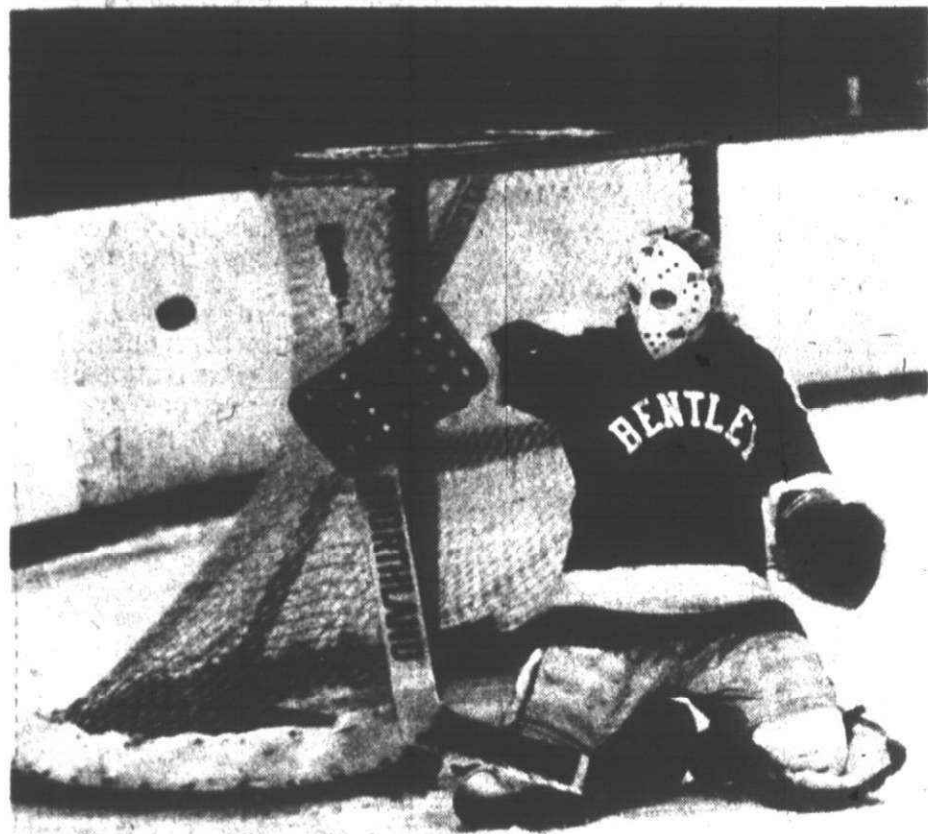

"This tournament is beneficial for high school hockey. It should have been started years ago. It gives the players a lot of good exposure," Dudley said.

neer outclassed Jackson Lumen-Christi, scoring the first 10 goals of the game before Lumen-Christi tallied twice toward the end to make it a 10-2 final. Dave Fardig, Craig Hefner and Doug Kennedy each tallied twice for Pioneer.

Livonia Stevenson, the lone area team which has yet to play in the tournament, will swing into action at Ford arena Friday in a 9 p.m. game against Pioneer.

KEVIN STACHELSKI opened in the nets for Livonia Bentley as Ann Arbor Huron rushed to a 3-1 first-period lead.

CHURCHILL, THE AREA'S lone winner in the tournament, fell behind 3-0 to a scrappy Allen Park club, but the Chargers caught fire in the second period.

Defenseman Sam Bird tallied at 4:46 and Kevin Kardas scored at 11:03 of that period to pull Churchill within a goal.

Forward Todd Bond took over from there, scoring the tying and go-ahead goals to advance the Chargers to Thursday's 8 p.m. regional semifinal against Ecorse at the Wyandotte Arena.

Churchill carried the play to Allen Park all night, recording 39 shots on goal compared to 13 for Allen Park.

Franklin made a game of it for a while in its regional contest against Trenton as Patriot Steve Pellegata scored the game's initial goal at 1:21 of the opening period.

But Trenton had too much for Franklin and the Trojans went on to take a 3-1 first-period goal and ultimately, a 5-1 victory.

IN THE OPENING game of the Ford Arena regional, Ann Arbor Pio-

Glenn leads regional grapplers

Westland John Glenn paced area high schools in Class A regional wrestling competition at Trenton High School Saturday, taking one first and qualifying two other grapplers for state final competition this Saturday.

Agron Bacha at 105 pounds, took honors in that weight class while Don Cicotte and Fred Shoemaker, also of Glenn, qualified for the state tournament at 112 and 138 pounds respectively.

Wayne Memorial won the Trenton regional with 74 points. Glenn placed seventh with 23 points.

THREE OTHER area wrestlers stayed in the running for Class A state honors. Scott Renner of Garden City West placed second at 155 pounds while heavyweight Doug Stein of Livonia Stevenson also grabbed a runner-up spot.

Plymouth Salem's Jerry Brink qualified at 138 pounds, placing third.

The Class A wrestling finals will be held Saturday at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

Livonia Clarenceville's Mitch Lenovitch overcame an injury to his lower back to qualify for the Class B tournament in regional action at Riverview High School last Saturday.

Lenovitch sustained the injury in his second bout of the day which he lost to Madison's Mike De Gain. Lenovitch came back to take his third match but on doctor's orders, and since his victory in the third bout had already qualified him for the state tournament, he defaulted in his final match at 167 pounds.

The Class B state tournament will be held Saturday at East Kentwood High School in suburban Grand Rapids.

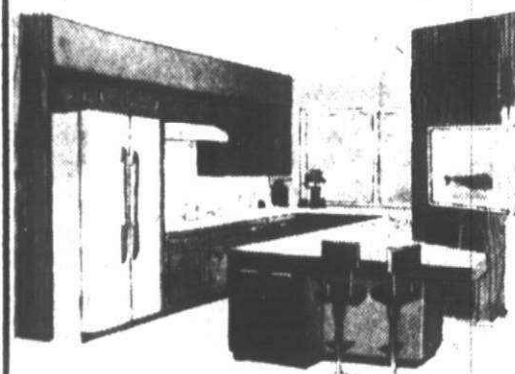

Northville depth takes Western Six tank title

Northville High won only two of 11 events in Saturday's Western Six league swimming meet, but the Mustangs came up with enough seconds and thirds to win the meet, edging Farmington Harrison, 386-343.

Plymouth Canton finished third with 178 points and Livonia Churchill took fourth with 92. Walled Lake Western trailed with 86 points.

Standout freestyler Glenn Peterson of Canton paced the Chiefs with a first in the 50 freestyle and a second in the 100 freestyle. Peterson matched his season's best in the 50 yard event, turning in a 23.1 clocking.

Southfield grandma shares harness operation

By R.T. THOMPSON

What does a grandma do with her time after she has spent the usual number of hours playing with her three grandchildren?

MRS. ROBERT KALISH

That's the question often asked of Mrs. Robert Kalish of Southfield, who raised two sons, had a long term of service in Jewish cultural and religious circles and then suddenly found herself with time on her hands.

"That's about the time my husband decided to give up the operation of several parking lots in downtown Detroit and devote all of his time to operating a harness racing stable," she said.

"It wasn't that Bob was going into a new venture as a greenhorn. Far from it, since he had had pacers and trotters for several years. But it had been more a hobby than a business."

Now, she explained, it became a business that required his full attention if it was to be a success.

"So as long as he was going into business, we decided that I should join in the venture as a partner," recalled Fannie, as she is known to all of her friends. She became the book-keeper.

It wasn't exactly new for Mrs. Kalish. She had served as secretary to the assistant general manager of Russek's clothing store, and as a secretary at Auto City Steel, R.J. Monk Co. and the Theater Equipment Co. prior to meeting Bob.

It wasn't long after that first meeting the two decided to wed and it has been 39 years of married life. During that span Fannie remembers there were many hard times and then there were good days.

It was especially tough during the war days of 1944-46 when Bob spent 15 months in North Africa.

During that time, Fannie was at home raising two boys, Gene and Neal, whom she terms "were typical youngsters, keeping you busy all the time to make sure they weren't up to some kind of mischief."

"During the early days when my husband had horses, I was busy raising our children and didn't accompany him to California and Florida when he made trips there to see his stock perform," she smiled.

THEN SEVEN years ago, Bob disposed of his parking lot and that's when Fannie became a partner, book-keeper and assistant general manager.

She handles all business and has all the figures about the operation of a stable that costs about $2,500 weekly for the head trainer, Tom Merriman, and his five assistant trainers, along with the other bills that go with having a stable of as many as 15 to 20 horses.

"I used to get excited when we acquired a new horse," she exclaimed, "But now it's sort of old hat. It's another investment that has to work out or we're in trouble."

"I know the ins and outs of the books but not of the horses. That's Bob's end of the business, although he does consult with me when we're thinking of buying another horse or making a trade. You know in this business you have to have a winner or you have to get rid of the horse."

"There isn't anything like falling in love with a horse such as so many owners do. This is our livelihood and we have to get results. We have no place for non-producers."

MRS. KALISH said she is enjoying life as much now as when she was in-involved in social and cultural activities in the Jewish community.

"This is a different way of life and now I'm enjoying every minute of my work," she said. "I like to keep books, I like to go to the races to see our horses perform and I like to check over the books at the end of each day and report how our operation is going."

"We know that we have to earn at least $100,000 each year to break even. That's a challenge to Bob and to myself and we have succeeded by hard work and a good operation."

Asked which horse she liked best,

Fannie told of her first love, Mr. Blackbird. She cried when Bob sold it. But that's all in the past now. Fannie can tell you of Mighty McKlyo with earnings of $47,000; Tricky Dale, who won more than $100,000; Victory Horn, one of the stable's best; and of Para B, a trotter purchased for $4,500. He now has a bankroll of $60,000.

"Naturally my first love are my three grandchildren," she says. "They are the greatest and give us both a lot of fun and relaxation. Then we settle back and figure out ways to get more winners and better our racing operation. It's a lot of fun and work."

In The Pocket

By W.W. EDGAR

Further proof that mixed leagues have become a dominating factor in bowling came with word from the Women's International Bowling Congress that more than half of its sanctioned circuits engage in this type of competition.

According to the official report 71,061 of the 139,548 leagues now are of the mixed variety. This is the first time in history that this has happened.

Another interesting feature of the annual report showed that of the leagues sanctioned last season 111,964 were classed as winter leagues and 27,584 as summer leagues and that 51 per cent of the winter leagues bowl in daytime hours.

WHEN THE MOTOWN TEAM posted its 1131 game in the Ladies Major League at Pine Tree Bowl two weeks ago, it not only took top place in the state, but the nation as well.

This came to light with the release of the official figures over the weekend. Two other Detroit area teams have earned places on the national honor roll. The Palm Beach Recreation team is in sixth place with 1085 and Thunderbird Lounge is ninth with 1071.

THE UNUSUAL happened at Farmington Lanes when the last place team in the Teen Classic rolled the highest score of the day. With Ray Sewell furnishing a 238 in 517 and Marsha Terry adding a 183 in 500 to go with Dan Kubat's 211 in 552, the team posted a 764 series. Not bad for a team with a 591 average.

High scores also dominated the Noon Classic where Jan Schoenberg registered a 227 in 627 and in the Wednesday Mixed circuit where Ken Hibbs fashioned a 230 in a 617 series.

THE SHARPSHOOTERS had an off week at Bel-Aire Lanes with the result that no one came close to breaking the 700 barrier.

George Berling topped the list with a 658 in the businessmen's league as he beat out Ed Wright with 652 and Doug Hayes who landed third with 620.

It was much the same in the senior house league when Ed Miu paced the field with a 633 and gained a one-pin edge over Hugh Brotherton.

ONLY SEVEN PINS separated the top trio in the scoring race at Mayflower Lanes. Alma Mahar set the pace with a 559 and this was only five sticks better than Jackie Jeruzal, while Tam Richards finished in third place with 552.

The split conversion club added three new members. Carol Whittenberg toppled the 4-6-10, Carl Broome knocked down a big one when he converted the 6-7-9-10 and Ken Nycek did the same with the 3-6-7-10.

IN OTHER good performances Bill Clack topped the men's league at Country Lanes with 635, Ed La Croix, a 173 average bowler, contributed a 635; Mary Moke showed the way in the Holiday Park league at Plymouth Bowl with a 203 in 543.

The unexpected happened at Plaza Bowl when Jerry Dykes joined the Triplate Club ranks with three identical games of 159 in the senior citizens circuit and Gerry Nadsen, of the Plymouth Symphony League, had an all-spare game of 185.

Turf Tips, Quips

By Doc Minard

Things may change for Northville Downs now that the runners are finally getting under way with the 1975 season but up to this time the 'Downs has enjoyed sensational luck.

Attendance is up more than 15 per cent and wagering is at an all-time high for a winter meeting with gain of better than 21 per cent and climbing.

All of which makes one wonder if Executive Director John Carlo feels as bad about losing summer dates as he did last fall when the racing commissioner announced his plans for 1975.

Northville's business reached a high during the past weekend when record crowds poured into the half-mile track Friday and Saturday and set new highs both nights.

With a $520,000 total on Friday, the track came right back with a crowd of 6,459 Saturday and a handle of $581,000. That was the largest turn-out count and the most wagering since winter racing started in Michigan.

BUT THAT'S only part of the story. Wagering soared to $506,000 Monday and that was another record.

Who would have believed back in 1944 that Northville Downs would handle more than a million and a half in three nights? The track has had better weekends during the summer but seldom three consecutive nights with a record for each.

Probably some of the reason for the success during the three nights is the fact that Racing Secretary Harry Peterson has been able to arrange better than average programs on Fridays, Saturdays and Mondays. Mondays because it is the night the 'Downs operates without competition. It has the only game operating in the entire area. Windsor Raceway is dark and for the bettors there's only one place to go.... Northville. That's where they are going.

Saturday's program proved another point. A fast track can make a lot of difference in the performance of horses.

AFTER WHIPPING all of the fast class pacers on "off" tracks, Spanish Mac ran into a real tartar on the fast strip and lost to Good Box. It was the second time the six-year-old had beaten Spanish Mac on that kind of going.

It will be interesting to see what develops this week when the same pacers tangle again. If the track is fast don't overlook Springs Pride or Good Box, they should be able to get the job done.

From the stable area at the 'Downs one hears that Stu Oldford of Plymouth turned down an offer of $100,000 for his speedy Kool King. The trotter generally is rated the best in the area at this time and showed his ability by whipping his competition handily in last Friday's open event.

Oldford told us earlier that he had an offer from New York interests for a similar amount but rejected it also. He prefers to see his best horse perform and doesn't want to go to New York City or Chicago to see it.

It may be that Kool King will run out of opposition at the 'Downs in which event Oldford will either have to move it or allow it to rest until the start of the Hazel Park meeting in April.

NOW THAT things are back to normal at the Detroit Race Course and the runners will officially open the Michigan season Saturday, plans are being made for the remainder of the season.

First announcement is that the $100,000 Michigan Mile and an eighth will be raced on Saturday, June 21.

It will be the 27th running of the "Mile" which again will headline the race season at the DRC. The purse is guaranteed and is expected to again attract distance stars, three-year-olds and up, from all parts of the land.

Tom Tulle beat Rastaferian by two and a half lengths in the 1974 running.

Dates and purses for three rich Michiganbred stakes were announced at the same time of the "Mile."

The Michigan Futurity, a mile test for two-year-olds, is slated for Saturday, July 13. The Frontier Handicap is carded for Saturday, June 7 and the Dowling Memorial for Saturday, June 28. The Frontier is for Michiganbred three-year-olds and up and the Dowling for homebred three-year-olds.

Firemen resigned in 1946 dispute

(Part II)

The Plymouth hose companies were frequently called on to help fight fires in neighboring communities. On April 12, 1899, when the Globe furniture factory in Northville burned, the Royals, using Robinson's team of horses, arrived on the scene in 23 minutes. The Phoenix Hose Company topped them by 19 minutes. Phoenix loaded its hose cart on a Flint and Marquette flat car and rode the train to Northville, arriving in four minutes.

Globe, established in 1864, employed 200 workmen and was said to be the world's largest manufacturer of church and school furniture. The company owned and operated Northville's electric light system. When the plant burned, Northville was in darkness for a time.

Aside from minutes of their meetings, the Royal Hose Company's log book contained a list of the hat sizes of its members. For what it is worth, the biggest heads (size 7 1/4) belonged to E.C. Hough and H. J. Baker, and the smallest (size 6 1/2) to Czar Penney and D. W. Chaffee.

IN ADDITION to their firefighting function, Plymouth firemen provided excitement at Fourth of July and other celebrations in the early 1900s by staging hose battles with fire teams from neighboring villages. The teams directed blasts of water at each other in an attempt to make the opposition give ground.

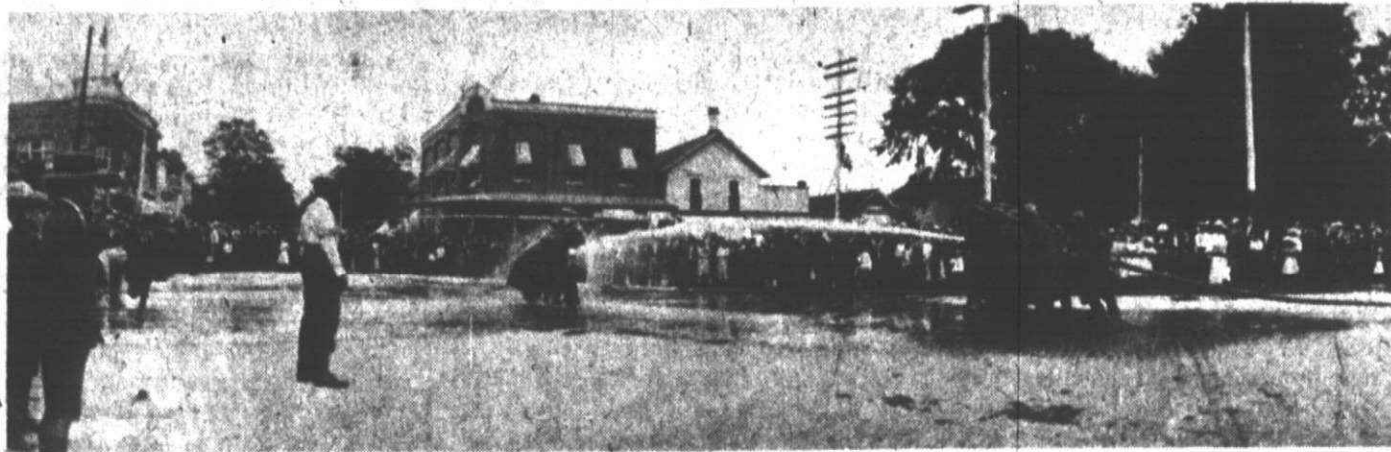

Bookmark contest scheduled

PLYMOUTH—The Dunning-Hough Library will sponsor a bookmark design contest this spring as part of National Library Week.

Entries will be taken in three divisions for children in grades 1-3, grades 4-5, and grades 6-12. One winner will be named in each division and the winning entries will be printed and distributed during National Library Week, April 13-19.

The theme for library week is "Libraries Have It!" which may be incorporated into the bookmark design. All entries must measure 2 1/2 by 8 1/2 inches with a 1/4 inch margin and be printed in black pen. More than one design may be entered by a student, but a name should be placed on each entry.

Deadline for the contest is Tuesday, March 18. All entries will be displayed at the library during library week. For further information, please contact the library at 223 S. Main.

ONE OF A SERIES of pictures taken by C.G. Draper, Plymouth jeweler and optician, showing the annual fire hose battle between the Plymouth and Northville fire departments on Main Street at the corner of Penniman on July 3, 1909. (From "Pictures of Plymouth, Past and Present" with permission of the author)

PLYMOUTH—PAST AND PRESENT by Sam Hudson

Water battles on home ground took place on Main between Penniman and Ann Arbor Trail, adjacent to Kellogg Park. A series of excellent photographs exists showing Plymouth competing with Northville in July 1903. They were taken by C. G. Draper, whose jewelry and optical store was on Main, a few doors south of where Schrader's Funeral Home is now located.

The water jousts drew large crowds in the first two decades of the century, but were discontinued about 1920.

Fred Wagenschutz had the longest tenure as fire chief, serving from 1921 to 1946.

Robert McAllister, appointed in 1946, was Plymouth's first fire chief paid on a full time basis. Only 24 at the time of his appointment, McAllister, whose father and grandfather were fire chiefs before him, was the youngest fire chief in Michigan.

WIDELY KNOWN throughout the firefighting profession, McAllister was a division director of the International Association of Fire Chiefs and past president of fire groups on national, state and regional levels. He died of a heart attack, at age 36, in March 1959.

Between 1959 and 1964, Kenneth Fisher, with the title of director of public safety, headed both the fire and the police departments.

George Schoenneman, who ran the fire department as assistant chief under Fisher from 1963 to 1965, has been fire chief since 1965. He was hired by McAllister in 1947 as the city's first full-time fireman.

In the early days, volunteer firemen operated largely on their own. They approved the entry of new members and elected their own fire chief, who usually served for a year or two. In October 1945, a fire study committee, appointed by the city commission, proposed that changes be made in this system, precipitating a confrontation with the volunteers which threatened to leave the city without any fire-fighters.

The committee, composed of Robert Lidgard, John Blyton and Cass Hough, who was chairman, recommended that the city hire a fire chief who was to serve on a full, not part-time, basis. In addition, he was to be selected by civil service procedure, was not to be over 40 and preferably not over 35.

The volunteer firemen objected, saying that they "were by-passed and slapped in the face." They felt they should have been represented on the committee, and that the man who was then the fire chief, Fred Wagenschutz, should be given the full-time job.

CITY MANAGER C. H. Elliott suggested that a promotional examination be open to any fireman who would like to apply for the position. The committee agreed to this suggestion.

On April 3, 1946, Elliott appointed 24-year old McAllister to the fire chief's job at a salary of $3,000 a year. Old ordinance No. 73, creating a fire department for the village, was abolished and a new ordinance was substituted.

The volunteer firemen were disgruntled. On June 14, 1946, at a special meeting of the city commission, when Robert Lidgard was mayor, the firemen submitted their resignation as a group. City Manager Elliott, rising to the occasion, poured oil on the troubled waters. After listening to him, the volunteers withdrew their resignation, "and matters of misunderstanding were clarified."

Since 1946, the city has had a full-time, paid fire chief and a nucleus of full-time paid firemen. These are supplemented by volunteers who are paid according to the number of alarms to which they respond and the number of hours they spend at fires. In 1975, the department consists of a chief, 10 full-time firemen and 21 volunteers. Volunteers are paid $6 for responding to an alarm and $4 for each hour on the job.

(Dollar losses, principal causes of fires, and problems facing today's fire-fighters will be covered in Part III).

Mental patients' needs and rights may conflict

By SHERRY KAHAN

Last July the Legislature approved a mental health code designed to bring a new era of enlightenment and efficiency into the state mental health picture.

While the code was the product of three years of legislative effort, it had a number of last minute amendments added because of a decision on commitment procedures handed down by a panel of three federal judges.

Under the gun because the decision rendered segments of the previous mental health statutes unconstitutional, the Senate passed the code 33-1, the House 93-0.

THE CODE included many new organizational and financial improvements in the state mental health system. But it was the new regulations aimed at strengthening the civil rights of mental patients that captured the state's attention.

Several of these principles owed their presence in the law to the federal judges' decision.

The law produced wall-to-wall uproar, law enforcement officials, mental health personnel and citizens in general loudly proclaimed their dissatisfaction with the promising new code.

Hearings about possible code changes have already taken place in Lansing and Detroit under the sponsorship of the Senate Committee on Health, Social Services and Retirement.

THE CONTROVERSY has settled mainly on the sections of the code designed to buttress the civil rights of mental patients, who have been placed involuntarily in a mental health facility.

Several of these sections simply have not worked as expected in real life situations.

Thus a law that set out to block the railroading of an involuntary patient into a mental hospital, has proved in practice to place a barrier between him and quick treatment.

Thus a law intended to grant humane medical treatment to an individual declared not guilty by reason of insanity has somehow backfired. The result has sometimes been a denial of treatment to the individual and his return to society, scot-free.

Thus a law which on one hand protected the patient by setting up safeguards against surgical and electroconvulsive therapy, on the other hand, failed to protect society, by returning unwell mental patients to the community.

ONE WHO regards the new code as a step forward as far as civil rights are concerned is Dr. Richard Budd, superintendent of Northville State Hospital in Plymouth.

"But it is not the final answer," he says. "It will have to be modified to meet the needs of the patient and society."

Dr. Budd points to two major problems created by the new law:

•The hospital admission criteria set by the state are too stringent. For example, individuals declared not guilty of crimes by reason of insanity sometimes cannot qualify for the treatment the jury intended them to have.

The same stiff criteria can also cause the return to society of involuntary patients who are plainly mentally ill.

•Needed treatment must be denied an involuntary patient until the hospital receives a court order to this effect. He cannot receive even a tranquilizer unless he has been given informal and formal hearings. These can often take two weeks, sometimes three.

ACCORDING TO the criteria established by the code, an individual can be hospitalized if he is mentally ill, and as a result can be expected in the near future to injure himself or others in a serious physical manner," explains Dr. Budd.

"He can also be hospitalized if he is unable to care for his basic physical needs, or avoid serious harm."

"We have to prove in court with our own observations, or by those of witnesses that he is dangerous."

Dr. Budd notes one judge has said that just because an individual might do something, does not mean he can be hospitalized.

"If a man murdered someone five years ago, but hasn't demonstrated this tendency recently, he cannot be kept in a mental hospital against his will," Dr. Budd says. "We have to prove he can reasonably be expected to kill someone in the future."

"And that isn't easy."

"Just because he is psychotic, or even criminal, doesn't mean he can be put in the hospital, if he is not dangerous at the moment."

DR. BUDD joins law enforcement officials in his concern over these admission standards and how they are applied to persons declared not guilty by reason of insanity.

"Once a person is declared not guilty for this reason, he is judged innocent of his crime, whether it is murder or shoplifting. He then has to be released or hospitalized. But, if he does not qualify for admission under the criteria, we cannot keep him."

Dr. Budd notes that "possibly when juries understand this better, they will not so readily declare a person not guilty because of insanity."

HE ADDS that contradictory legal opinions have made the problem even more complex.

"This issue will have to be evaluated by the commissions and committees which are working to improve the code yet at the same time, maintain its constitutional safeguards," he said.

"At present lawyers are confused, the Legislature is confused and some of the court decisions seem to contradict each other."

ANOTHER DIFFICULTY raised by the new criteria lies in that involuntary patients may have to leave the hospital, or may not qualify to enter initially.

"Many patients need to enter the hospital, or if they are already here, to stay," says Dr. Budd.

"Their relatives think so, and we think so. But if they don't want to stay and if they don't meet the new standards for staying set up by the state, then we have to release them no matter how mentally ill they are."

"We have to release some patients whose families say they are impossible to manage."

Dr. Budd is hoping for a law that says "we can hang onto a patient who is no longer able to act in a social setting in his own self-interest, or in the interests of society."

"Then we could base the court case on what is best for the patient."

Sometimes we preserve the patient's rights whether it is good for him or not."

THE SECOND problem raised by Dr. Budd concerning quick treatment for patients has been real and dramatic at Northville.

"I might get a call that a patient is tearing up the place or hitting people," says Dr. Budd. "But he cannot be treated without a court order, if he is here against his will."

"So we have to go back to the old camisole (straight jacket) and wrist restraints, and lock him in a room until the court order arrives. This can take two weeks or more."

"It is rough on the staff. Three of our people were injured recently."

"Often, after one of these patients finally receives treatment and calms down, he asks us why we didn't treat him in the beginning when he began to act up."

NOR DOES the code allow immediate treatment of an involuntary patient brought into a mental health facility. This can be critical in a place like the crisis center of Detroit General Hospital, which refers many of Northville's patients.

"In this center, if a patient is treated quickly, he often can be settled down and sent home in a few days," says Dr. Budd.

"This early attention might keep him from being sent to Northville at all. But if he refuses treatment, nothing can be done for him at that time."

DR. BUDD explains that before the code was passed, a patient could be admitted on the basis of a physician's certificate and treated from the beginning, whether he wanted it or not.

He also mentions another new rule, which, like many of the others, was passed to protect the patient's civil rights.

"Involuntary patients must attend their informal hearings, unless they are physically ill," says Dr. Budd. "Even if they have to go in restraints."

"In a case like this it seems we are jamming their civil rights down their throats."

Sheriff sees mental health code as boon to jail

Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas

The young, dark-haired man was arrested on a charge of armed robbery. Before he was apprehended, however, he engaged in a shoot-out with sheriff's deputies and was wounded in the exchange of gunfire.

In court he was found not guilty by reason of insanity.

During the recent Christmas holidays, this same man accumulated a small arsenal of weapons. He barricaded himself in a home, but, fortunately, sheriff's deputies were able to coax him into giving up without a gun fight.

At the state's forensic evaluation center in Ypsilanti, the man was determined not to be mentally ill. Consequently released from custody, the man, within hours, was threatening his wife, causing a disturbance in a local bar and known to be driving his car with suspended license.

He was re-arrested on charges of drunk driving and driving with a suspended license. In the sheriff's office he threw a violent tantrum, shouting and fighting with deputies — before being placed in a cell.

"This man is mentally ill," the county sheriff explained. "and we are forced to treat him as a criminal rather than turn him over to appropriate mental health experts for help."

THIS TRUE story illustrates the crying need for better confinement and treatment facilities for mentally ill prisoners in Michigan.

And Wayne County Sheriff William Lucas is in the forefront of the battle, along with Michigan's 82 other county sheriffs, to see that this is accomplished. Although the way seems rough and long, there appears to be some hope.

At least that is the opinion of Lucas, who currently is facing contempt of court charges for housing more than 799 prisoners at Wayne County Jail. The reason for Lucas' optimism is a recent court ruling, effective immediately, that inmates committed to State Department of Mental Health facilities on 60-day diagnostic orders and 18-month commitment orders must be transported immediately to the forensic center in Ypsilanti.

"This will help fantastically," Lucas says, "because it will significantly lower the number of people with mental problems housed at Wayne County Jail. Unfortunately, it will not solve the problem. The burden will only shift to the Department of Mental Health in trying to find room for them at Ypsilanti."

Once the court says commitment is necessary, it is my responsibility to see they are taken there immediately. Up until now, they had to wait at the jail until the Department of Mental Health could transport them and many times there was no transportation available."

OVERCROWDING in the Wayne County Jail has pointed up the acute need for more jail space, better facilities to house and treat mentally ill prisoners and the courts' role in the entire procedure.

Confronted with an increasing number of mentally ill persons confined in county jails, the Michigan Sheriffs Association has submitted a formal resolution to Gov. William Milliken and the State Legislature calling for an immediate study of the situation.

This group includes Lucas who has been caught in the vise of conflicting court rulings. On one hand, some courts have ordered prisoners sent to Wayne County Jail even though Lucas can not "legally" accept more than 799. He has to decide which court order to obey.

AS LONG AGO as 1971, a court hearing revealed the county jail had approximately eight times as many suicides as Jackson Prison, in addition to many more sexual assaults. It was determined the causes were a lack of safeguards, improper facilities and police officers who were not trained to handle prisoners.

There is still no full time psychiatrist at the jail.

The suicide of David Fregin, a 17-year old youth, on Nov. 13, 1974 the county jail triggered the present contempt hearing against Lucas. Also named as defendants in the suit are Wayne County Auditors, Wayne County Commissioners and Frank Wilkerson, jail administrator.

SITTING on the three-man panel are Judges John O'Hair, Victor Baum and Thomas Brennan who must render decisions in three main areas:

•Whether any of the jail's alleged violations of the Circuit Court's order played a causal role in Fregin's death.

•The rights of jail inmates and the obligations of the Wayne County Sheriff and Wayne County Commissioners.

•Do judges have the legal authority to order county commissioners to build a new jail? Would it be wise to execute such authority if they could?

The statute says authorities "must provide a suitable and sufficient county jail." Wayne County Commissioners could have formed a building authority in 1972 and built a jail without voter approval. However, they chose to put a bond issue to build a jail to a vote of the people and it was rejected.

THERE WAS a $2.5 million renovation of Wayne County Jail in 1972 but it is still inadequate to handle the prisoner load. Hence, the contempt suit brought on behalf of county jail prisoners by their legal representatives.

Meanwhile, Ypsilanti remains the site of the only forensic center in Michigan and all 83 counties send their mentally ill prisoners there. It is staffed with psychiatrists who evaluate the mental competency of prisoners sent there, but its 115 beds are inadequate to handle the load. Wayne County sends about half the number of patients, approximately five each week.

As one law enforcement officer put it: "When money is short, it seems the Department of Mental Health is always the one to suffer."

But a magistrate summed up the situation best: "The public doesn't realize that mentally ill people are walking the streets because of a lack of jail space and inadequate mental health facilities."

"And it's the public's responsibility to provide them!"

Social and land policies prompt regional zoning viewpoint

Proponents of large lot zoning say it makes for open space and a better environment. Critics contend it discriminates against low-income and minority groups by pricing them out of the market.

Such many-sided issues place zoning increasingly in the spotlight in regional land-use decisions, said Prof. Karl G. Pearson of The University of Michigan (U-M) in a recent address at the University of Nebraska.

Prof. Pearson, a faculty member of the U-M Graduate School of Business Administration and former zoning board chairman, is director of real estate education at Michigan.

HE CITED some of the controversial aspects of zoning:

"Zoning restricting apartments to one bedroom units is said to be a form of 'architectural birth control,' but its supporters contend it equalizes the tax burden."

"Zoning which bars mobile homes and parks is said to shut out low-income families; on the other hand, its advocates claim it insures against a 'trailer ghetto' image for the community."

California, Delaware and New Jersey restrict new developments along their coastal belts to preserve the environment and guard against pollution, according to Pearson.

"Other communities are limiting the number of new building permits, imposing a ban on septic tanks, establishing sewer moratoria and restricting new utility hookups."

"Such curbs are naturally opposed by the National Association of Home Builders, which has financed litigation in opposition."

ONE VICTORY for the association was against an ordinance which placed a ceiling on new building permits. "The federal judge hearing the case decided this was an infringement on the rights of citizens to travel where they please and to settle where they please."

The case will be appealed to the U.S. Supreme Court, which recently ruled that local zoning authorities may regulate the number of unrelated persons living in a house.

Pearson said courts in New Jersey and Pennsylvania have ruled against ordinances which require new housing to be put up on one acre lots.

MINORITY GROUPS have stated that large-lot zoning "uses the environment as a convenient cloak for segregation and discrimination," while the counter argument reasons that large-lot zoning reduces traffic congestion, preserves community character and helps retain natural beauty, he added.

"Historically, zoning has been regarded as local in character, and the courts have declined to overturn the wishes of a community," Pearson explained.

"As social and land policy issues rise in zoning enactments, a corresponding acceptance of zoning from a regional standpoint is now seen in many areas."

THUS, Pearson said, "...real estate developers now do a social reconnaissance before going into a community, and call their projects 'community developments,' rather than real estate developments."

Developers work with local leaders by dedicating land and school buildings to get approval of high density subdivisions, and furnish economic and environmental impact statements, he said.

"They picture themselves not only as new tax ratables and bringing in income, but also as preservers of the ecology."

Continuing accreditation status has been granted to two health career programs offered at Schoolcraft College, Livonia.

They are the occupational therapy assistant certificate program and the medical record technology degree program. Each was extended full recognition for the maximum time granted — about five years according to Harriett H. Sattig, the college's director of health careers.

MRS. SATTIG said qualifying for continued accreditation was a process similar to gaining that status initially.

"It involves an indepth self-study, visits to campus and off-campus training facilities by association representatives, a committee review of all findings and, finally, the decision of whether to continue a program's accreditation."

"Fortunately, both of our programs were judged worthy of continued accreditation and it speaks well for our students, staff, administration and the many professionals who assist our programs at off-campus training sites."

SCHOOLCRAFT STUDENTS are trained at a number of health facilities in the area including St. Mary Hospital, Livonia, Garden City Osteopathic Hospital, Metropolitan Hospital in Westland, and Plymouth State Hospital within the college district.

Other agencies among the college's more than 30 affiliated sites range from Detroit 20 Ann Arbor and from Pontiac to Wyandotte.

The accrediting agency for occupational therapy is the American Occupational Therapy Association and for medical records, it is the American Medical Record Association.

Schoolcraft has 18 students in the occupational therapy program at present and 45 students in medical records.

BESIDES these programs, the college offers practical and associate degree nursing and medical laboratory technology programs.

The two nursing programs were reviewed last year by educational consultants from the Michigan Board of Nursing and each was granted continuing approval.

Medical laboratory technology, newest of the health careers at Schoolcraft, will be evaluated and accredited by the National Accreditation Agency for Clinical Laboratory Sciences. Mrs. Sattig says this will take place after the first class has graduated this summer.

Schoolcraft is one of the few colleges in Michigan with a medical laboratory technology program with a two-year degree.

Weighmaster crew protects consumers against shortages

LIVONIA—Ralph Nadar may be the chief of staff for consumer advocates, but the infantrymen in the fight to make sure the customer gets what he pays for are found in a little-known Livonia city service.

That service is the city's building department and performed by weighmaster Laurence Hopps.

He is the man who checks local gasoline pumps and scales to make sure that a gallon of fuel is a gallon of fuel and that when you buy a pound of meat, you get a full pound.

Hopps and other weighmasters in the county are being spotlighted this week as part of the national observance of weights and measures week, which ends Friday, March 7.

THE SERVICE was established in Livonia by Mayor Edward McNamara three years ago for consumer protection.

The mayor said the city inspects homes, factories, streets, electrical and plumbing work, craftsmanship to assure that construction in Livonia met city standards and that buildings are structurally safe and meet fire protection standards.

"Why not do the same for the consumer?" the mayor asked. He recommended to the city council that a bureau of weights and measures be created as a daily service to make sure that shoppers get what they pay for.

Hopps is battling 100 per cent on violations brought into Livonia District Court with the fines levied by the judges totaling more than $35,600 last year, or about $5.00 less than the year before.

Maximum fine for violating the weights and measures ordinance is $500.

Hopps said about his job:

"They know we're for real now. They know we're out on the road every day and most of them are on their toes. Our goal is simply to insure that the Livonia consumer gets what he pays for — not to harass merchants. Our basic function is consumer protection.

"We've been at it three years now, ever since the mayor and the city council gave us the green-light. We can see the improvements in merchants' attitudes. We don't do it by appointment — we drop in unannounced and go about our business.

"We were busy last year," Hopps said. "We checked 394 trucks with 109 carrying overweight loads. We issued tickets, most of which resulted in court cases and resultant fines. We do this to protect the lifespan of our roads.

"We checked 804 gasoline pumps and condemned 62 which did not deliver the correct amount.

"In the retail markets, we inspected 438 scales and condemned 72. We held some 419 inspections in markets on pre-packaged food items. We issued three 'short-weight' tickets.

"In all cases, we are empowered to either shut down a gasoline pump until it is fixed; order that scales in markets not be used until they meet the correct tolerances; or, require a market to re-package its entire stock of foodstuffs until we're satisfied the consumer is getting what he or she pays for," Hopps said.

The inspections work "both ways," said Hopps.

"We've found scales and pumps which were off tolerance in favor of the customer. One scale was giving 20 ounces per pound instead of 16 with the merchant losing money.

"Some gasoline pumps have been found to be giving more than a gallon. In all cases, we condemn these scales in order that the merchant can have them repaired. We want people to remain in business," Hopps said.

"Every day is 'weights and measures week' in Livonia," Hopps said. "We're not only out on the job during the normal five-day work week, but we also 'spotcheck' vehicles on Saturdays and Sundays when there's the possibility truckers may feel the gates are open."

Hopps spends full time on the job, but each month Chief Building Inspector Frank Kerby assigns one inspector from the sanitation division to assist Hopps. They are William MacDonald, Robert Yasko and Robert Wilkins.

"THIS NOT only gives Hopps additional manpower," Kerby said, "but it also insures residents that we can ultimately broaden our 'consumer protection' program by training additional personnel in the use of the intricate equipment used to make the inspections."

MacDonald said the group had checked every scale and pump in Livonia in 1974.

"We'll take a mile road and simply go door to door until we're finished," he said. "Our attitude is that most merchants are honest; that scales or pumps which do not meet tolerance are the result of carelessness.

"We occasionally run into the oddity. A hardware store was weighing grass seed on a baby scale or a bathroom scale. This simply isn't acceptable. They must have scales which conform to federal standards."

The crew also inspects produce and has ordered markets to remove potatoes and onions, for instance, which had been stored too long and had begun to sprout.

Some items which are left out on the shelves or meat counters too long also lose their prescribed weight and are ordered removed.

The crew even counts items which are offered for sale by number. For instance, if oranges are listed or advertised as being "10 for $1," the crew will spot check for an accurate count.

How can state help schools desegregate?

The role of state agencies in school desegregation is the focus of a public hearing by the Michigan Civil Rights Commission on Tuesday, March 11.

The hearing will begin at 9 a.m. in the seventh floor conference room, State of Michigan Plaza Building, 1200 Sixth Ave., Detroit.

The commission wants to obtain testimony from individuals, groups and state agencies on the following:

- What could state agencies have done to assist local school districts in developing and implementing school desegregation?
- What did state agencies do in the early stages preceding the Detroit desegregation lawsuit?
- What should state agencies do now?

The commission is aware of problems experienced in the school districts in Michigan, both those in federal court on this issue.

The commission has asked written presentations be sent in advance of the hearing to Michigan Department of Civil Rights, Public Information Division, Stoddard Building, Lansing 48933 before March 3.

Those wishing to make an oral presentation, besides a written one, should also notify the public information office of the commission. Oral testimony will be limited to five minutes per speaker with additional time allotted for questions from the commissioners.

Former Tiger gets award

Former Tiger pitcher Robert J. (Bob) Bruce of Livonia was recently honored for his work with youth. He was named recipient of the third annual Distinguished Youth Service Award by the United Northwestern Realty Association (UNRA) and the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors (WWOCB).

The honor was given for his active leadership and participation in the Livonia Little League, YWCA St. Michael School and other community sports programs for youngsters.

Bruce, now vice president of residential sales for Thompson-Brown Co., is best known locally for his appearances on the Tiger mound, but he later played with the Houston Astros and the Atlanta Braves. He joined Thompson-Brown in 1968 as a subdivision sales manager, was promoted to manager of new residential sales in 1970 and elected a vice president in 1972.

A graduate of the Realtor's Institute of Michigan, he is a member of local, state and national real estate boards, and is serving a second term as president of the Sales and Marketing Council of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

He and his wife, Betty, are the parents of four children.

St. Mary Hospital maintains accreditation

St. Mary Hospital of Livonia has been accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals for a two-year period.

The full accreditation is the result of an on-site survey by field representatives of the Joint Commission's hospital accreditation program.

Accreditation indicates St. Mary is operating according to standards set by the Joint Commission. The standards set forth optimal achievable goals of excellence against which a facility can measure itself and be measured by the accreditors.

St. Mary is one of about 5,300 general hospitals nationwide which have earned this recognition. There are about 7,400 general hospitals in the U.S.

Although it isn't legally necessary for a hospital to be accredited, most health care facilities seek accreditation because it represents a benchmark of quality, higher than governmental licensure alone.

The chief aim of the accreditation program is to help hospitals in their pursuit of excellence and thereby provide a higher quality of patient care.

SC Foundation re-elects Barsamian

Armen Barsamian of Garden City has been elected to a second term as president of the Schoolcraft College Foundation.

An official of the Ford Motor Co., Barsamian is a member of the Garden City Board of Education and has been active in the Schoolcraft Foundation since 1971.

The foundation, organized in 1966, is a non-profit corporation of college district residents who raise and administer endowment funds for the college and its students.

Other Foundation officers for the current year, some also serving second terms, include: Dr. Eric J. Bradner of Livonia, president emeritus of Schoolcraft, first vice-president; Robert Cadotte of Livonia, second vice-president; and Joyce C. Ludwig of Livonia, secretary.

The group's assistant secretary is Violet Bradford of Northville. Two others from that city are Jack Wern ner, treasurer, and B. William Se cord, assistant treasurer. Persons interested have an open invitation to join and may by contacting Mrs. Ludwig at the college.

This past December the group presented $1,200 to the college for scholarship and loan funds. Nearly $900 of the amount was raised at a dinner-dance in the fall. The board of governors is exploring making the dinner-dance an annual event.

It is estimated that almost $40,000 has been raised by the foundation or through individual members' efforts since it was formed.

Plymouth, Westland orchestras sparkle

By SUE ROSIEK

Performances by the Westland Civic Symphony and the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra highlighted the area concert scene last weekend, with programs that offered a variety of pop and classical selections.

THE WESTLAND presentation in the Westland Shopping Mall consisted chiefly of contemporary tunes. The program began with Scott Joplin's "The Entertainer," an upbeat rag time piece. Radio personality and concert master of ceremonies Jimmy Launce conducted the group's first number. He started with just a handful of musicians but the others drifted slowly on stage. By the end of the song, the entire orchestra had assembled and was ready for some serious music with its "real" conductor, H. Michael Endres.

Works included the "Rosamunde" overture by Schubert and "Csardas," a gypsy violin solo.

Janet Lalonde Lilienthal, violin soloist, displayed fine musical technique as she easily handled the slow sad melodies as well as the lively, whirling passages.

Endres, musical director of the Westland orchestra and also director of orchestras at Plymouth Salem High School, shared the podium with Norman Logan, assistant director.

Logan, band director at Westland's John Glenn High School, led the orchestra in Strauss' "Blue Danube" and "The Sound of Simon and Garfunkel," a medley of three pop tunes. Besides his conducting duties, Logan also played with the group's trombone section.

ENDRES RESUMED the reins and the group concluded with a medley from "Jesus Christ Superstar," arranged by Henry Mancini, and "If You Go Away," a Rod McKuen piece.

The young orchestra has a lot of potential. In its second concert of the season, it displayed fine musical talents. It has an ambitious, dedicated conductor to help it develop.

For its next concert the orchestra might try finding a more suitable location. The east court at Westland Mall doesn't offer the finest acoustics. Also, those who didn't arrive at least a half-hour before the concert were left with a choice of either sitting on the floor or standing.

THE PLYMOUTH Symphony Orchestra's fifth offering of the season was an all-orchestra event, in which the group got a chance to show off its musical abilities.

Under the direction of Conductor Wayne Dunlap the orchestra performed "Les Biches" by Francis Poulenc, "L'Ascension" by Oliver Messiaen and the "Pathetique" symphony of Tchaikovsky.

The group offered a full-bodied tone and was together, for the most part. Under Dunlap, the musicians rendered a moving, interpretation of "L'Ascension," a series of symphonic meditations. The concluding number, "Pathetique," was, however, the most impressive. The four movements offered a variety of music from slow melodic strains to a powerful, dynamic, march sequence.

The Plymouth symphony's next concert is a joint offering of Rossini's opera "The Barber of Seville" performed by the Michigan Opera Association and the symphony on Saturday, April 26 in Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium. The production is being sponsored by the Plymouth Symphony and the Plymouth Community Arts' Council.

U-M prof judges mall art festival

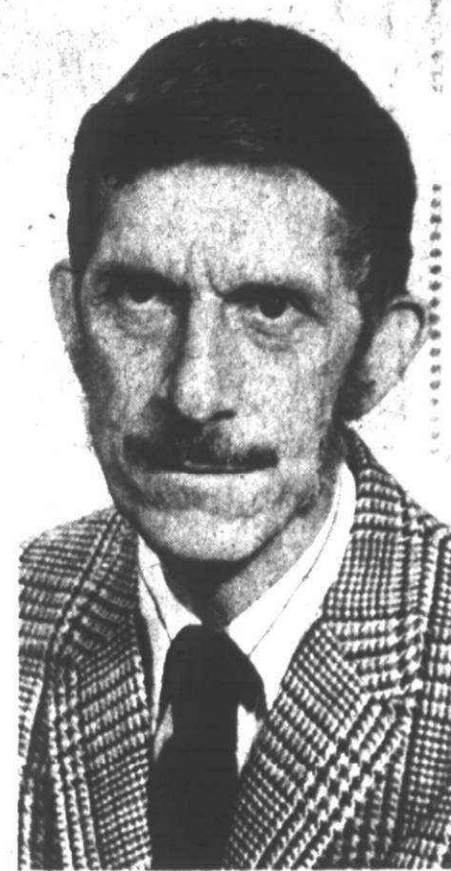

Guy Palazzola, professor of art at the University of Michigan, will judge the first annual Michigan Art Festival in the Livonia Mall, Friday, March 7 at 4 p.m.

Palazzola is an accomplished artist. His works are owned by many private collectors and he is represented by five paintings in the permanent collection in the Detroit Institute of Arts. The Butler Museum of American Art in Pennsylvania, owns three of his works, and he also is exhibited in the Concoran Gallery of Art, Washington, DC and the Grand Rapids Art Museum.

He has received two Rackham research grants, one for study in Italy and the second for a study of Northwest Pacific Coast Indian art.

About 1,000 paintings will be on display throughout the mall. There will be daily demonstrations in painting and crafts. All award winning artwork will be shown in a "winners circle" for the duration of the festival.

The Michigan Art Festival continues through March 16 in the mall. Wood, metal and wire sculpture, ceramics, hand tooled leather, creative jewelry, lapidary, tile work and other crafts will be featured.

PROF. GUY PALAZZOLA

Livonia Y offers acting, film classes

The Livonia Family Y, 14255 Stark Road, will sponsor a four-week acting class and workshop for film and television starting March 13. The program will be offered for children seven through 15 years old. Russ Vogel, professional actor and writer for the Sunday morning show, "Hot Fudge," will be the instructor.

The workshop will be in the Livonia Y every Wednesday and Friday from 6 to 7:30 p.m. The cost is $18 for members and $27 for non-members. Registration for members is March 10 and for non-members March 11. The Y will be open from 9-11 a.m., 1-3 p.m. and 6-8 p.m. both days.

The workshop will deal with understanding all phases of television and film production, how to read script, improve imagination and create characters. Also how to relate to other actors.

Youngsters will produce their own film, in which each will have a chance to participate in every phase of film development from writing and directing to handling props and operating the camera.

Vogel says those children who show promise will be encouraged and given help as to further courses, agencies and auditions.

'Hadrian VII' opens in Hilberry

"Hadrian VII" by Peter Luke opens in the Hilberry Theater, Wednesday, March 12, and plays again on Thursday and Saturday, March 13 and 15. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m.

The play is based largely on the novel "Hadrian the Seventh" by the eccentric turn-of-the-century writer Frederick Rolfe (Baron Corvo) and, in part, on the story of Rolfe's life. In the play, Rolfe acts out the fantasy of a frustrated would-be priest who imagines himself Pope.

The Hilberry production features Wayne S. Turney as Rolfe-Hadrian. Other principal roles are played by James Kisicki, Mark Pint, Al Hamacher, Christopher Coull, John M. Hosking, Colby Schneider, Thomas C. Spackman, Jan Lewis and Justin Rashid. Direction is by Robert T. Hazard.

Complete schedule and ticket information is available from the Wayne State University Theater box office in the Hilberry lobby, Cass and Hancock.

"Hadrian VII" continues in the repertoire to the end of the season, May 24.

Singers pick ballads, bawdy blues

By DAN McCOSH

Monday night in Livonia is not what you would call one of your big nights for stepping out on the town.

If you do go out on Monday, the odds of finding much more than a neighborhood bar and some company are slim.

But you may amble into the Dino's Pizza Parlor at Joy and Merriman Roads, and push by the carry-out window into the restaurant.

Likely as not you will be greeted by Sam Talerico, the kind of bartender who not only remembers your name, he remembers what he was talking to you about the last time you were in, and picks up from there.

On stage—right, there is a stage—you hear some blues with your pizza.

"DUNCAN AND Pearse," as they call themselves after a thoughtful search for an appropriate stage name, are Duncan Graham and Pearse Johnston.

They grew up in Plymouth and work days in an antique car restoration shop in that town. Which is why on occasion they may still have a touch of paint under their nails on Monday night.

They play blues. Now when you say "Blues," you may think about sad songs, heart-break, lost loves. Which is part of what the blues is about, sure.

But when troubles get bad enough, they get belly-laugh funny, like Charlie Chaplin used to be. Put together a rocking, driving song with lyrics like, "Tell me mamma, who was that a while ago? When I came in, who went out that back door?" and you have to grin a bit.

Duncan's vocals and guitar work range from bawdy songs to slow blues, and sometimes an original statement.

Pearse is one of the better blues harmonica players you are likely to hear.

This "simple" instrument wails and talks, and on those occasions when the group is really working together, you start to grin again.

THE TWO HAVE been playing together and singly for about seven years. In the area and on the west coast, "Pearse has done more coasts than anybody I know" was the introduction to a traveling song, and you can feel it when he plays.

What you walked into is a kind of experiment, owner Benny Iaguinto said. Turning a pizza parlor into a nightclub is something he is trying to see if it works out.

The unlikely location doesn't help much, he admits, but he hopes word-of-mouth will pull in a crowd. Even his recently-acquired license for liquor by the glass is a little unusual for a pizza place, he adds.

Iaguinto is encouraged by the response and hopes the weekday business will pick up, too.

What he has put together is a casual, comfortable kind of club with some solid entertainment, the kind of place that isn't supposed to exist in the area.

Schoolcraft College music instructor Robert W. Jones has been awarded a commission to write a bicentennial composition.

The $4,000 award was made by the subcommittee on bicentennial activities within the Worship and Arts Commission of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Michigan.

Cntly untitled, the hour-long dramatic work employs multi-media resources including vocal soloists, spoken narrative, dance ensembles and congregational participation.

According to Jones, the most interesting facet of the work is its manner of presentation. "It is designed so it may be presented by any church in the Dioceses, from the largest cathedral to the samillest mission," he says.

Jones explains this will be accomplished through "flexible scoring," a system through which the music may be effectively performed by large ensembles or a single piano or organ. Other elements of the work are equally flexible in their design, he adds.

Through dramatic highlights the story will trace the growth of the Episcopal Church in Michigan from its missionary beginning to the present day.

Jones came to Schoolcraft under a Ford Foundation grant as a composer in residence in 1969 and now is a permanent member of the music faculty.

Besides composing other works of music he is the host of a local radio program. Jones analyzes the intent of the composer and the feelings which inspire the creative forces of the writer.

During the spring of 1976 Jones' bicentennial work will be premiered in St. Paul Cathedral, 4800 Woodward, Detroit. He will supervise the entire production.

Weage plays

Bradley Weage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Weage, 750 Sunset in Plymouth, recently participated in combined choral and ensemble performance at Western Michigan University.

Miss Krueger receives lead

Laurie Krueger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Krueger, 16229 South Hampton, Livonia, has been awarded the lead role in the Dearborn Players Guild production "No. No. A Million Times No."

Miss Krueger, 15, is a student at Frost Junior High School. She is a member of the cheerleading squad, and studies dancing and piano. She has danced in several children's programs presented by the Theater Guild of Livonia-Redford.

The play, which will be March 14 and 15, is Miss Krueger's first major acting role.

The third act is by far the funniest. The situation lends itself easily to comedy everyone can identify with, and the cast does a remarkable job.

The scene opens with Norma and Roy Hubley, portrayed by Millie Roy and Floyd Guernsey, pleading with their daughter Mimsey to come out of the bathroom. Just minutes before her expensive wedding, Mimsey gets cold feet and retreats to the bathroom. She refuses to budge despite pleas and threats from her harried father.

GUERNSEY IS hilarious as the exasperated father-of-the-bride. He tries many things, some reasonable and some not so reasonable, to get his daughter to the altar on time. When talking fails, he attempts to break down the door, which he isn't physically capable of handling. Next, he climbs along the edge of the building in order to enter the bathroom window. He reaches the wrong window and ends up with a torn tuxedo. He finally calls upon the husband-to-be, who gets results with a simple "Cool it, Mimsey."

Wayne-Westland stage, turns in a fine performance as the devoted wife, who would like to think her marriage is as stable as it was 23 years ago. She is funny, in a sad sort of way. Mrs. Calhoun is one of the brighter spots in the opening act.

In the second act a famous Hollywood movie producer, played by Danny Myers, comes to New York and decides to look up his high school sweetheart, Muriel, played by Ginnie Tadlock.

The producer is disenchanted with the plastic woman of Tinsel Town. After three wives, he longs for the plain and simple girl he left behind in Tenafly, New Jersey—Muriel.

MYERS DOES a good job presenting the suave, successful Hollywood mogul, but Mrs. Tadlock steals the scene as the fumbling, nervous, unsophisticated sweetheart.

Mrs. Tadlock recently won an award for best supporting actress in the 1975 Fury Community Theater Festival. Her performance in "Plaza" is an example of her award winning theatrical talents.

PLYMOUTH RESIDENTS Duncan Graham, guitarist, and Pearse Johnston, harmonica, play at Dino's on Joy and Merriman roads, Saturday through Monday from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. The group will rotate a weekend and weekday schedule. (Staff photo by Art Emanuel).

Actors' talents include comedy

By SUE ROSIEK

It was obvious a lot of time and effort went into the Wayne-Westland Civic Theater's recent production of "Plaza Suite," a three-act comedy by Neil Simon.

Comedy, although it may appear easy, is a difficult form of theater. Timing is an important element of a successfully staged comedy.

THE WAYNE-WESTLAND presentation was, for the most part, well done.

The comedy, directed by Jacquie Guernsey, revolves around three different sets of guests in Suite 719 of the Plaza Hotel in New York City.

The first guests, Sam and Karen Nash, played by Riley and Tadlock and Carol Calhoun, are staying in the hotel while their house is being painted. The Nashes spent their honeymoon in the Plaza some 23 or 24 years ago. They are slated to celebrate another anniversary, but neither can remember exactly what day they were married.

Nutrition Week, 1975 --it's a time to celebrate and resolve

By MARGARET MILLER

Americans should count blessings and make resolutions during National Nutrition Week, going on right now.

That's the word from three Livonia women whose vocations and interests lie in helping people use their intelligence and dollars to become better nourished.

Irene Cameron, coordinator of communications for the Dairy Council of Michigan, would have us make wiser use of "the greatest food supply and variety anyone ever has had" by paying more attention to nutritional values and using the new nutritional labels that are coming on the scene for food products.

Dorothy Sack and Gene Marie Nielson, dietitians at Mt. Carmel Mercy Hospital in Detroit and members of the American Dietetics Association, want to see heed paid to their organizations Nutrition Week theme, "Food Fads Fool."

ALL URGE KNOWLEDGE and use of four basic food groups—milk and milk products, meats, fish and eggs, fruits and vegetables and breads and cereals—as opposed to junk foods and fad foods.

Mrs. Cameron, whose work with the Dairy Council takes her to television and radio studios to present programs showing people how to spend food dollars, said the important thing is to choose from all food groups and eliminate the purchases like pop and potato chips.

"They are so expensive, and they don't give any nutrition at all," she said.

To prove good nutrition does not need to be expensive, Mrs. Cameron put together two days' menus for a family of four, two adults and two teenagers, based on the $5.50 figure that the Michigan State University Extension Service has said would be the low cost amount for a family that size to spend on food.

One day's menu, she said, could include an orange, an egg and a glass of milk with toast and butter for breakfast, vegetable soup, five crackers, two ounces of cheese, an apple and milk for lunch and a dinner of turbot, broccoli, a baked potato, bread and butter and milk. The cost for that day's food for four is $4.34, she said.

A second set of menus, with a total cost $4.86, includes a half grapefruit, rolled oats and raisins and milk for breakfast, a cheese sandwich, celery with peanut butter and hot chocolate for lunch and a dinner of beef and bean chili, coleslaw, carrot sticks, bread and butter, milk and canned peaches.

MRS. CAMERON has high hopes, nutritionally speaking, for the labels that, come July 1, will be required by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for all foods that make a nutritional claim or add any kind of nutrients.

Some foods, she said, already bear these labels, because originally the requirement was to have taken effect the first of the year.

The delay came, she said, because some food producers, such as those in the milk industry, were having trouble working out the means for placing the labels on the containers.

The labeling, she said, will have to contain information on serving sizes, servings per container, caloric content or calories, protein content, carbohydrate content, fat content and percentage of the U.S. recommended daily allowance.

"I'm sure people will start looking at the labels to find out how many calories," she said, "and from that start will progress to using the rest of this valuable information."

THE LABELING PROGRAM Mrs. Cameron went on "has taken 10 years to develop and at a cost of $15 million."

"It is consumer groups that asked for the program," she added, "because people wanted to know better what they were buying in the cans they purchased off the shelves."

"Hopefully, homemakers will use this information, and eventually their pressure will lead the producers of foods not now included to put the same information on their labels."

This home economist estimated that increased attention to the labels will require about 10 minutes extra time in the supermarket.

"But it will be time very well spent," she said, "because there will be savings at the cash register and more nutritious purchases. FDA has come up with a slogan, 'Read the label and set a better table.'"

SUBURBAN LIFE

MRS. SACK, current head of the Detroit Hospital Food Administrators' Association, agreed that good nutrition means selection of food from all four basic groups.

"Our organization chose to make fighting food fads our primary concern in Nutrition Week this year," she said, "because recently there has been so much emphasis on gimmick diets, both for health and for weight loss."

"But it is not necessary to buy special health store foods—they are expensive and no more nutritious than those properly-selected in the supermarket."

"In fact, diets that are based on just certain foods may be harmful because they leave out nutrients important to everyone."

AS DIETARY SUPERVISOR, Mrs. Sack oversees the feeding of patients, staff and visitors to Mt. Carmel, and part of that work is to help patients on special diets and their families work out good nutrition.

Mrs. Sack also said a great deal of information now is available in food and homemaking columns of many publications, so that "if people read the newspapers, they can have the knowledge needed for a nutritious diet."

"We get kind of lazy in our meal-preparation habits," she said, "but the cost of convenience food is beginning to make us change. Nutritious meals do not have to be costly ones if we learn to use the basic four food groups properly."

Area women will have an opportunity to be tested for cervical cancer in a free Pap test clinic March 17 through 21 in the Plymouth Veterans building, 173 N. Main, Plymouth.

Available to all women, the clinic will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. It is sponsored by the Plymouth Registered Nurses Association and the Michigan Cancer Foundation. Co-chairman of the clinic are Mrs. Lorene Blome representing the nurses' organization, and Mrs. Louis Dely, chairman of the Plymouth branch of the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

The Pap test is a reliable test for cervical cancer, one of the most prevalent cancers in women. Such cancer is curable if detected early.

PHYSICIANS recommend that all women have a Pap test at least once a year. In some cases, the test should be administered more often.

The test takes about five minutes. It is a painless collection of cells from the cervix. The cells are examined by microscope for any abnormalities in color, size or shape.

If the test is negative, the woman will be informed. If some abnormality shows, both the woman and her physician will be notified.

The test can be administered at any time except during a woman's menstrual period and four days thereafter. The tests are given only by trained professionals.

Irregular bleeding or unusual vaginal discharge are among the first visible signs of cervical cancer. The Pap test indicates signs of cervical cancer long before these visible signs are apparent.

Although such signs do not always indicate the existence of cervical cancer, they should be reported immediately to a physician.

THE COMBINATION of early detection of cervical cancer by use of the Pap test and appropriate treatment can prevent needless deaths every year from this form of cancer.

Appointments should be made if possible by calling the Plymouth office of the Michigan Cancer Foundation, 173 N. Main between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on week days beginning Monday, Feb. 24.

However, no woman will be refused a test.

Although I'm the member of our family who should, by vocation at least, be the one concerned with the rights of women, I find our daughters getting into the act quite often these days.

Our high school sophomore and her math class offer a case in point.

She has kept up a running verbal battle all this school year with that teacher, whom she describes as a Male Chauvinist Pig of the first order. (I should point out, though, that she has done some mighty class switching to get into the one taught by this particular MCP.)

ANYWAY, I'LL LET her catalog her grievances.

"The textbook has three male writers and one female," she reports. "When he agrees with the book, he commends Albert, Alfred and Ray. When he disagrees, he blames it on Mary."

"Then one day a pamphlet came out on women engineers. He stapled it to the bulletin board—upside-down. If two girls talk before class, it's because they're 'women'. Two guys talking before class get no comment whatsoever."

HER OLDER SISTER, pursuing math studies on the college level, was delighted with one of her textbooks. She found a really liberated problem involving the travel time of a young physician making HER rounds.

But she too has met up with a bit of MCPism.

Because her school has mainly male students, she found herself the only woman in a chemistry class. So when, in one day's classwork, she had to make computations about a chemist and HIS results, she felt it her feminist duty to cross of the word "his" and substitute "her."

When the professor passed back the papers, he made no comment, she reports. But he made up for it at the end of the class.

"We seem to have a woman's libber here," he announced as our daughter turned red.

"I would suggest to that student that on the day of the exam she pray to God that SHE will help her get a passing grade."

—Margaret Miller

Lansing is keynoter

Marjorie Lansing, political science professor at Eastern Michigan University, will give the opening address at a conference on "Women in the World of Work" to be held March 8-9 in the community arts auditorium of Wayne State University.

The conference is sponsored by the women's committee of the Detroit Human Rights Commission and will feature speakers, workshops, discussions and films on the problems and goals of women who work.

Women's committee chairperson Lillian Hatcher said: "This conference is one of many to be held during the observation of International Women's Year, and will serve as an educational experience for the entire community."

Mrs. Lansing will discuss "Women, How Far From the Goal?" Other conference topics will include the problems of minority women, homemakers and volunteers, religion and the role of women, and the working family in crisis.

Registration is free to students and workers on unemployment compensation. A donation of $1 is being asked of other participants.

'Diabetes and Eye' is topic

"Diabetes and the Eye" is the topic for a presentation by Dr. Raymond Magherio scheduled by the Western Wayne County Unit of the Michigan Diabetes Association, meeting Wednesday, March 19 at 7:30 p.m. in the Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union Building.

Auditions open for area skaters

Ice Capades' scouts and coaches are constantly searching for new skating talent. Area skaters are invited to audition in Detroit's Olympia Stadium, Friday, March 14 at 10 p.m. immediately following the performance.

Skaters must be at least 17 years old and have a basic knowledge of jumps and spins of figure skating. Applicants are asked to bring their own skates. Judging will be done by the Ice Capades coaching staff.

The staff will train acceptable applicants before they are assigned spots in the show. Those who do not pass the initial audition may try again after following prescribed skating recommendations.

The ice show opens March 11 and continues through Tuesday, March 18. Performances include seven night shows and four matinees. Tickets are $4.50 to $6.50 and available at all Sears, Hudson's, and Grinnell's stores and the Olympia box office.

Women's year to be observed

A conference called "Women in the World of Work" will kick off recognition of 1975 international women's year at Wayne State University March 8 and 9.

General sessions of the conference, held under the auspices of the center for teaching about peace and war, will cover such topics as women and the economy, career change and international conventions dealing with women.

It will be held in the community arts auditorium, Cass and Kirby.

BECKY INGERSOLL of Kirk of Our Savior, Westland, shows one of the arresting posters for the church's weekend fast.

24-hour fast will aid CROP

Members of Kirk of Our Savior Presbyterian Church, 36660 Cherry Hill, Westland, will watch movies, worship, sing, do craft work and just enjoy fellowship from 6 p.m. Friday, March 7 to 6 p.m. Saturday, March 8. But they won't eat. Not until they break their fast with a community feast Saturday evening.

It's all part of the church's FAST for CROP, the community hunger appeal of Church World Service.

Kirk of Our Savior fasters are inviting all interested to join them in the project that will raise funds to help major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox Communion carry on programs of service to the hungry around the world.

Each person participating will seek pledges from sponsors willing to pay any agreed sum for each hour of fasting. The money thus earned will be sent to the service agency that helps those who are homeless or disaster-stricken as well as those who lack sufficient food.

Since 1947, CROP has supplied food and commodities to hungry people in over 30 countries. In recent years, CROP has shifted the emphasis of its programs from supplying food to helping people help themselves.

Seeds, fertilizer, tools and materials for self-help projects have been sent, as well as food that can be used as wages in work projects.

Audrey Conner of Garden City is chairman of the project in the Westland church, and working with her are Pam VanderWeele of Plymouth, Ron Scott of Westland, Janice Tyler of Westland and Matthew Johnson of Garden City.

Area merchants are donating food for the Third World Feast that will end the fast at 6 p.m. March 8.

REV. AND MRS. ROGER W. MERRELL

Grand Canyon pastor's topic

Shooting the Rapids in the Grand Canyon will be the topic for a program to be presented Saturday, March 8 at 7 p.m. by the Rev. Roger Merrell, former pastor of Newburg United Methodist Church of Livonia, and his wife, Josie.

The program, to be given in the church at 36500 Ann Arbor Trail, combines a color film of a boat trip through the canyon, photography of its geology and history and some musical selections and commentary by the Merrells.

Preceding the program, which is open to the public and sponsored by the church's Fidelis Class, there will be a potluck dinner for church members.

Rev. Merrell was minister of Newburg from 1959 to 1962, and it was under his ministry that the church's present building was constructed. He later served pastorates in Milan and South Lyon, and for several years has been on disability leave.

He and his wife undertook their Grand Canyon presentation because their oldest son, Dan, is a river pilot and maintenance man for Canyonland Expeditions in Colorado.

The music they offer in the program includes a medley of old songs they have titled "Looking for the Lost Chord," as well as "The Green-eyed Dragon" and "Sing a Song of Sixpence."

The Merrells also plan to present the program before a meeting of the Livonia Rotary Club in the near future, and the film is being considered for use by the audio-visual department of the Livonia school district.

3 services to mark world prayer day

Women from churches in this area will gather in three locations Friday, March 7 for the 89th annual celebration of World Day of Prayer by Church Women United.

Services are planned in St. Timothy Presbyterian, 16700 Newburgh, Livonia, St. Mary Catholic, 3417 Third, Wayne, and St. Scholastica Catholic, W. Outer Drive between Faust and Southfield in Detroit.

All will begin at 1 p.m.

Dr. Bartlett Hess, senior minister of Ward United Presbyterian Church of Livonia, will be speaker for the service in St. Timothy.

Refreshments will be served following the program, and there will be babysitting available. Church Women United of Livonia includes women from many of the city's churches.

THE SPEAKER for the Wayne-Westland Church Women United will be Ruth Knowles, who has helped organize the FISH helping program in that area.

Members from St. John Episcopal Church of Westland are in charge of the program.

Other churches represented will be United Methodist of Wayne, First Congregational of Wayne, United Presbyterian of Wayne and Kirk of Our Savior United Presbyterian of Westland.

Area churches whose members will take part in the service in Detroit include Good Shepherd Lutheran and Rice Memorial United Methodist of Redford Township and Evangelical Covenant and St. Martin Episcopal of Detroit.

They will hear a talk by Sister Mary Ellen Keyes of the Immaculate Heart of Mary order on her experiences during a year of study in Rome. An ecumenical choir led by the Rev. Arnold D'Achille, musical director of St. Scholastica, will sing.

Marriage success explored

By MARGARET MILLER

With twin circles, Dr. James Freer of the University of Detroit faculty can describe the differences in marriages and the people involved in them.

The psychologist addressed the Plymouth Newcomers Club recently on the topic "How to Keep Your Husband Happy."

And while his introduction included a statement that "all our husbands wanted us to come to this meeting," Dr. Freer didn't exactly espouse the pipe-and-slippers, lord-and-master routine.

"Really, it's what you can do for yourself that makes a better marriage," he said. "So many of us go through life echoing what we think the other person wants."

"But we have to understand ourselves, and accept our strengths and weaknesses, in order to be understanding and supportive of others."

DR. FREER SAID said two circles, representing the wife and the husband, can be used to represent five different marriage relationships.

In the first, the two circles overlap almost all the way, representing a marriage in which one partner (usually the wife) is almost totally concerned with the other.

"Nearly total immersion of one personality into another is all right if it is what both want," he said, "but it seems to me a pretty dull kind of marriage."

A SECOND EXAMPLE he held up involved two circles overlapping just a small amount.

"That is a picture of too many marriages today," Dr. Freer said. "The lives of the two partners are touching a bit, but there is a larger area that is lived without the other."

"There's not much room for communication."

In a third example, he described two circles completely separated, side by side.

"Actually, this kind of marriage could be more fulfilling than the first two," he said.

"But it's no marriage, really. It's just an acceptance. There may be sex, but there's no real involvement. These two have single lives under a Mr. and Mrs. title."

TO EXPLAIN the fourth kind of marriage in his list, Dr. Freer indicated two circles separated with a line drawn between them.

"These are the marriages that should be ended," he said, "and the heavier the line, the greater the separation, the less chance of reconciliation." He added that he was speaking from a sociological and psychological viewpoint and would not presume to get into religious considerations.

"Better divorce," he continued, "than keeping a marriage of this kind going for the sake of its children. Children are adaptable—they can accept separations."

SAYING HE WAS "saving the best for last," the speaker described the fifth marriage category as two circles in which the circumference of each passes through the center of the other.

"Many couples think this is what they have," she said, "but when they examine their lives more closely they find they look more like the second set of circles."

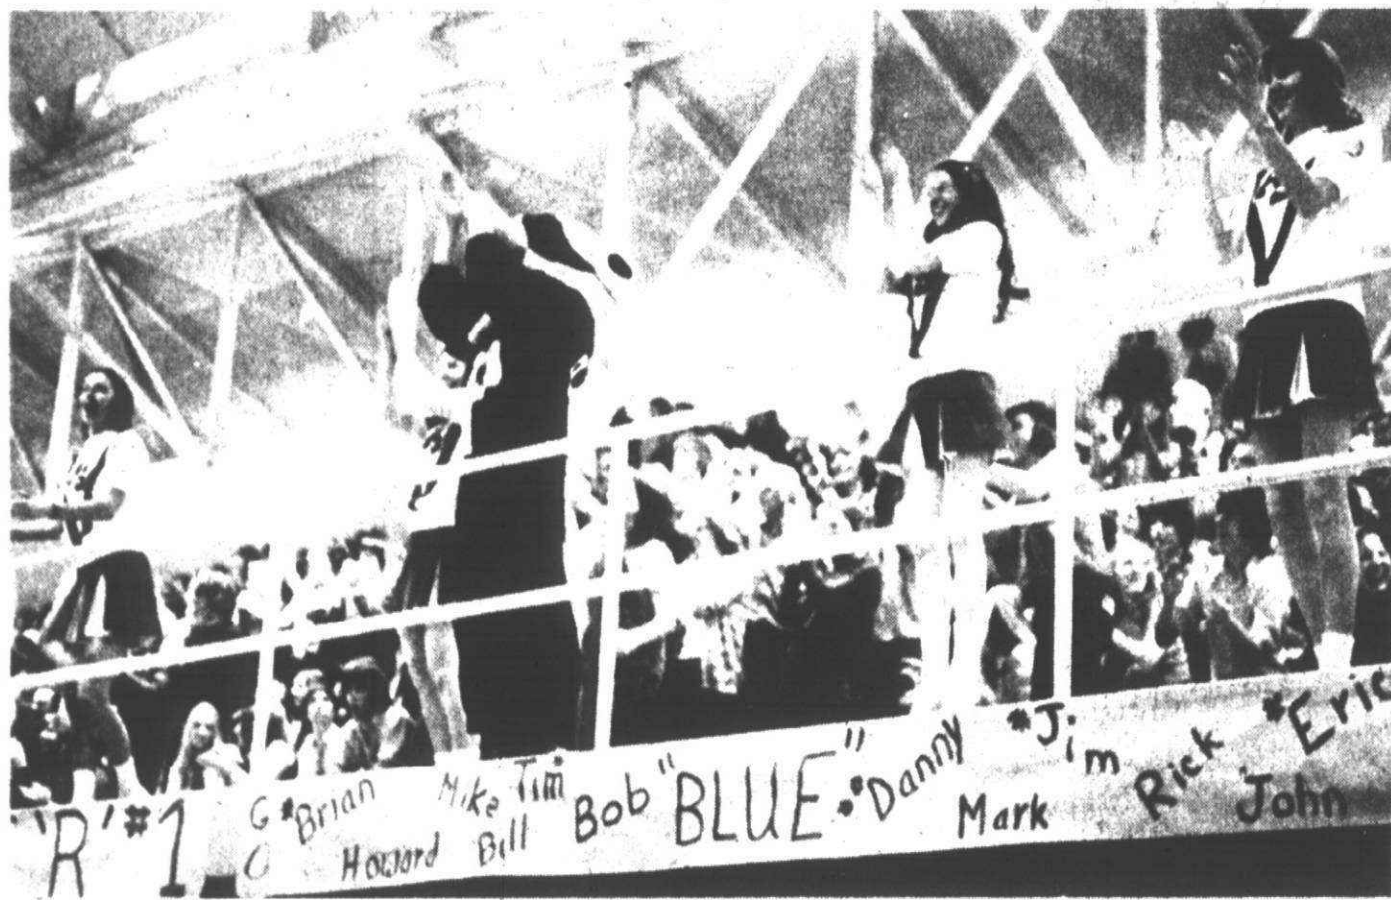

"The kind of marriage that gives the most satisfaction is the one in which the partners have togetherness in interest for about 50 per cent of their time and also bring to that interest center the parts of their lives that lie outside."

DR. FREER SAID life today is more difficult than life at any other time in history because "so much more is fed into us."

"For us, more than for any other people, there are decisions to be made constantly—moral, ethical, religious, sociological decisions."

"Often we react by becoming inhibited—it's too much to cope with. And this is particularly true for women today because their choices are greater than they used to be."

In marriage, he concluded, it is important that each individual make choices while being completely honest with his spouse. "Know yourself and be yourself, but not in a selfish way," was his advice.

TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH Board of Trustees - Regular Meeting February 25, 1975

7:30 P.M. Public Hearing Supervisor McLaren called the Public Hearing to order at 7:30 P.M. All members were present with the exception of Mr. Millington.

PUBLIC HEARING ON RECREATION PLAN - Supervisor McLaren opened the Public Hearing at 7:33 P.M., stating that the Public Hearing is to review the preliminary recreation plan for the Township of Plymouth and is a prerequisite for filing application for matching funds from the Department of Natural Resources and the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Mr. Dietrich, Township Planner, stated that he is presenting a preliminary recreation plan for the Township, his office has inventoried the recreation facilities of the Township, established some criteria for judging those which are preliminary and compared that with the inventory to determine the deficiencies against those standards, which are tentative standards. The conclusions reached show the long range ten (10) year and short range five (5) year objectives for recreation in Plymouth Township. With regard to the recreation site, Mr. Dietrich stated that it is divided into five separate zones which could be used for various purposes, having an entrance off Ann Arbor Trail. Mr. Dietrich recommended an access point off Ann Arbor Trail, coming into the center of the site, through the center and up to the ball diamonds with provisions for parking. Mr. Dietrich recommended structured facilities, such as tennis courts, little league, swimming pools and unstructured facilities, such as field sports, in the five zoning areas. Mr. Dietrich recommended parking facilities be placed for the ball diamonds this year which would be separate from what the Township would be going to the State for, and recommended going to the Department of Natural Resources for matching funds for a road coming into the site, grading and seeding, a pond for ice skating, made possible by widening the stream, expansion of picnic facilities, trail system for nature study. Mr. Dietrich commented that when the preliminary recreation plan is completed for the Township, there will be some idea as to the demands of the Township and come up with plans for such.

The Public was invited to speak to the Recreation plan, as well as the Board Members. There being none, Mrs. Richardson moved that the Preliminary Recreation Plan as presented by Norman L. Dietrich & Associates be accepted by the Township of Plymouth. Supported by Mr. Gornick and carried unanimously.

Mr. Burke moved to adopt the following Resolution:

RESOLVED, that the Township of Plymouth, Board of Trustees, hereby authorizes J. D. McLaren, Supervisor, to sign the application for matching Bureau of Outdoor Recreation funds for the development of the Township Recreation Site.

Grease recurs for '50s day

PLYMOUTH—Slick hair, bobby socks and saddle shoes returned to Starkweather Elementary School last week, as 100 fourth and fifth graders staged a "50s day" and dressed in the "old-fashioned" mode of their parents.

"It was a fun thing," explained Starkweather principal John Howe. "We're constantly trying to do things to pull the kids together."

Sponsored by student council, the "50s theme" was chosen for the school's fourth and fifth graders, who donned their parents' outcast shirts and leather jackets, Howe explained.

The school's younger grades are currently suggesting topics for their dress-up day, Howe said.

THE YOUNG COLLECTION

1. When you buy a Diamond

When you purchase a diamond at Wright Kay, the experience is unique. Each diamond is different from every other diamond. Each diamond forms its own patterns of dancing light and dazzling color as you hold it in your hand. Each diamond becomes a completely individual possession when it marks your engagement promise, or a very special occasion. Wright Kay is the guild jeweler.

2. Quality and Value

Wright Kay's diamond specialists are trained to advise you on every diamond purchase. Here are four characteristics that determine a diamond's value.

Carat Weight. The weight of a diamond is measured by the carat, a unit derived from the Orient's carob tree, whose seeds were used to balance scales in the bazaars.

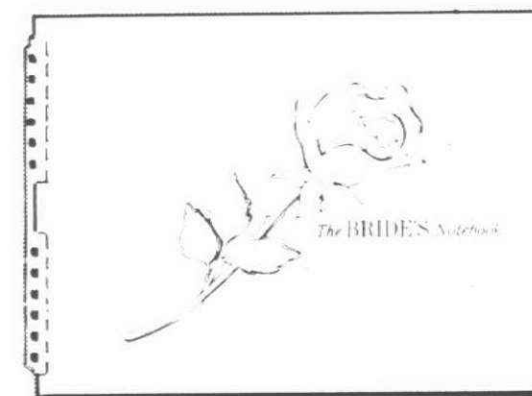

Color. Most diamonds described as white are nearly colorless but have a slight tinge of color. Diamonds of a clear white, without color, are very rare and valued accordingly. White diamonds with a tinge of blue are rarer still — perhaps one in many hundred thousands.

Clarity. Most diamonds contain small inclusions which were present when they were formed by Nature. However, such inclusions do not interfere materially with the passage of light through the stone, and do not affect its beauty and enduring value. Wright Kay diamonds contain no inclusions visible to the naked eye.

Cut. This refers to the shape of a diamond — and the arrangement of its facets. The shape of a diamond is decided upon by the cutter when he examines the rough stone. Choose your style at Wright Kay. A well-cut diamond has "fire" showing every color of the rainbow, because, like a prism, it has the power to break up light into the hues of the spectrum. Actually, a tinge of color in a diamond seems to give it more fire, a warmer beauty. Wright Kay only sells diamonds of fine color.

3. Registering

Smart brides-to-be register at Wright Kay where exceptional brand name merchandise and warm, friendly sales specialists help make the selection process more enjoyable as well as rewarding. And when you register or purchase your ring at Wright Kay, you'll receive the "Brides Notebook" at no additional charge. You'll find all the information necessary for planning your wedding and getting started in your first home in this step-by-step guide. MICHIGAN'S FINEST JEWELERS SINCE 1861

All this furniture does double duty: the coffee table adjusts to dining height, the chair becomes a dining chair and the sofa makes into a queen-sized bed

Our house

Is a very, very, very fine house

You may be starting a new life together when you get married, but never forget you had an "old" life before.

In your "old life" you probably had a favorite chair or other home furnishing item. Don't part with it—retreating to it may give you a sense of security after that first spat.

Sounds silly maybe, but psychologists agree that a couple's home environment is important to getting things off to a good start.

A man's home once may have been his castle, but in this economy and social climate where things are more "ours" than "his" and "hers," who can afford that attitude?

Generally, buying suites of furniture is out of the question, so start slowly and build up to a suite. Be pragmatic and ask for an important piece of furniture for a wedding present—or the money that will cover the purchase of same.

Consider a pallet upon which to rest. A good bed can last a long, long time and will keep you in good spirits. You'll rest better on it than on an inferior bed bought in the heat of moving madness.

Unless you're moving into an efficiency apartment, a sofa-bed is not a necessary item since friends will probably not prevail upon your hospitality during the first phase of your marriage.

Buy a little at a time, people can sit on giant pillows until you can afford the chairs you love.

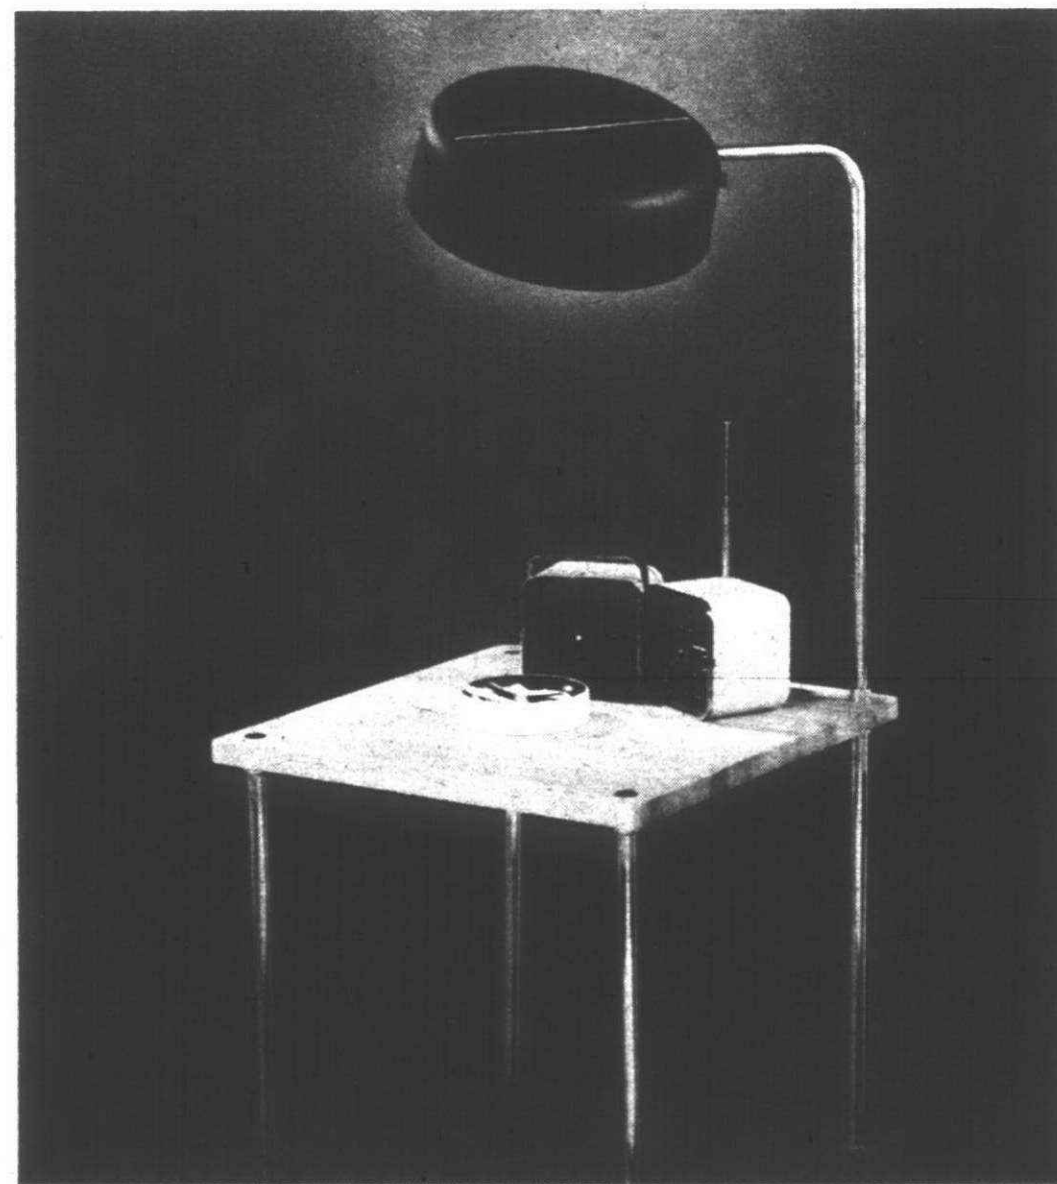

Remember that little things mean a lot. Build a room around an antique you just had to buy at an auction—whether it's a basket or a Tiffany lamp.

Stick to neutral color schemes if you can't decide or agree on a definite color. Also that neutral background will allow more freedom in choosing larger furniture pieces, as well as art.

One large painting or framed piece of fabric can furnish a room visually and create a mood without much cost or effort. Likewise a collection of anything from shells to bottles can set a color pattern for you, especially if you're having trouble picking colors or schemes.

Be sure to remember that your home will be your refuge from work-a-day problems and frustrations. Make it as comfortable as possible, but don't create more frustrations by running up huge bills for all-new furnishings.

—PAT SMITH

A lamp and table combination will always be useful

For me and my gal

The bells are ringing

Seeing a guitarist or an entire chamber music ensemble alongside a soon-to-be-united couple no longer comes as a great surprise.

Weddings have become personalized as more couples not only write their own vows but also choose the musical accompaniment for their ceremony.

"A very private thing done in a very public way," goes one song about marriage.

Specially selected music can keep intact the private, personal aspect of ceremonially publicizing this religious and social bond.

Before dashing off to sign up the Avid Artichoke Rock Band or the like to play at the joyful event, a couple ought to keep in mind the public nature of the ceremony and the fact that they'll have to live with each other as well as the memory of the wedding day for some time.

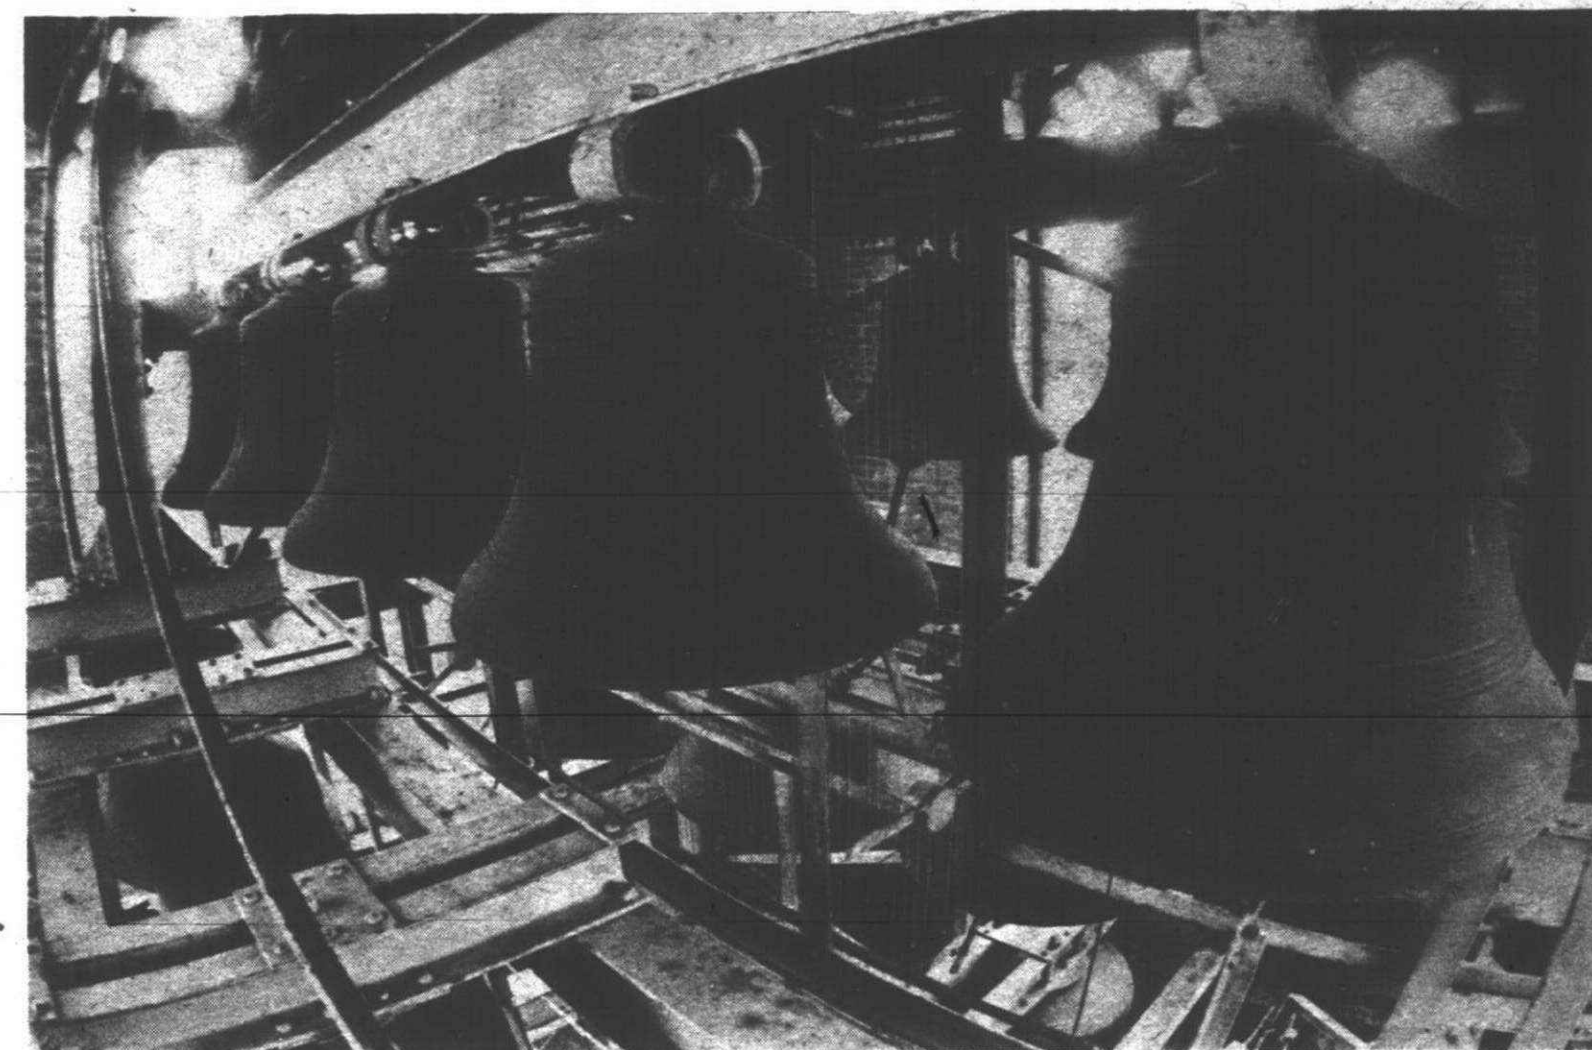

A few considerations can make the day less agonizing than most psychologists predict.

Hell hath no fury like a mother-in-law scorned. Political astuteness and future happiness suggest clearing the use of non-traditional music with both clans, as well as the cleric officiating.

If difficulties arise, remember that much folk and rock music now popularly used in weddings has been recast in more traditional orchestral forms; there's room for compromise.

On the other hand, some rock groups like Emerson, Lake and Palmer have taken on the classics, so everybody can be satisfied.

After agreeing to be different,

the couple should decide exactly how different. Maybe the traditional recessional is perfectly acceptable if some close friends participated in playing it.

And then, maybe Mendelssohn conjures images of pagans and fairies romping through the Athenian woods; but a classical cast to the music is still favored.

Beethoven's always a good bet for affirmative processional and recessional music; his Fifth Symphony sports several dandy themes for this purpose.

Check with a competent church musician for leads in this area and follow through with recordings from the library.

If contemporary music with lyrics is agreed upon, don't fall for just a pretty melody; be certain all the lyrics say something to the occasion.

"There's Got To Be A Morning After" is a nice song, but on third thought, it could be judged inappropriate for the rite preceding the wedding night.

Decide for whom a specific song is to be directed. "You Are the Sunshine of My Life" centers on the bride and bridegroom; "If We Only Have Love" makes a more public declaration.

Playability is another factor. Procul Harum has composed some inspiring and downright awesome music, but both the group and the Edmonton Symphony Orchestra are not readily available for one-shot gigs.

Recordings can be used as long as they're satisfactorily reproduced; both newlyweds and other participants will long recall the sight and sound of the ceremony.

A sound system needs someone to run it; be sure the person on duty is not a peanut butter-and-jelly fanatic. And the recordings themselves must be immaculate.

A good organist is worth his weight in records and tapes; at the hands and feet of the musician, a good organ suffices for a whole symphony.

Investigate the possibilities of hiring both the instrument and instrumentalist.

Of course, if a friend or the bride or the groom has composed something timely for the occasion, use it. Maybe the friend or bride or bridegroom could also perform it, making the ritual yet more direct and personal.

Finally, look at the marriage ceremony as a complete entity. Aside from the processional, the recessional and a good song in between, are all musical requirements covered? Does all the music make specific points throughout the ceremony about the special couple sweating it out up front?

Will the music help make the moment and the vows and the marriage last?

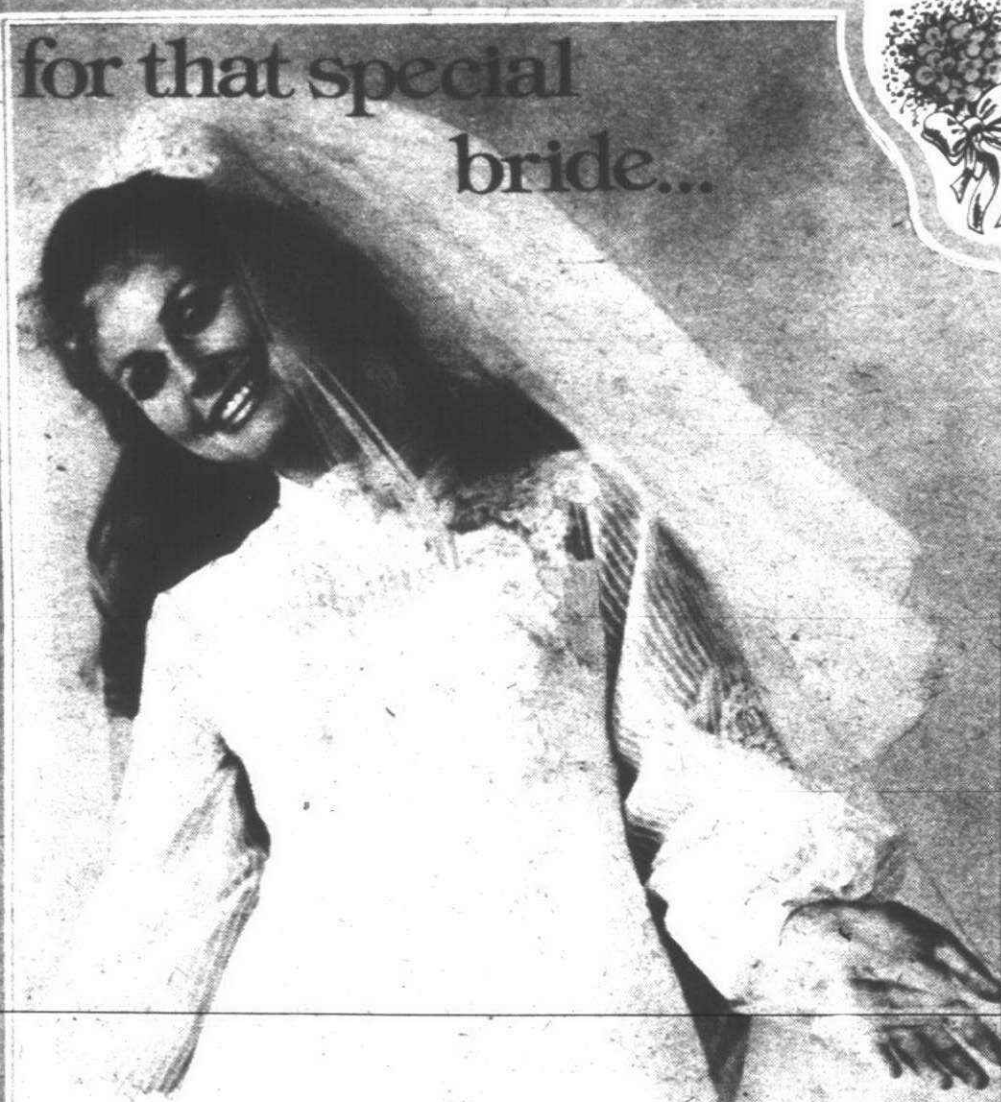

Hopefully, the answers to the final checklist are all "yes." Then, good luck.

Bridegrooms used to have very few decisions to make when it came to their weddings. Their brides arranged everything, from the printing on the napkins to the china pattern. Nowadays things are a bit different and not only is he helping to select the dishes, he's doing them.

He also has to decide what he's going to wear and the choices are many. White jackets and black pants are not the only way to wait for his bride.

Rather, baby blues, soft pinks, yellows and all white permeate the tuxedo market and complement the loveliest of bridal parties.

Also the suit shape has changed and the European looks show up with more fitted jackets and trousers.

Naturally, whatever the groom chooses, whether brocade or pastel, it must match what his bride has in mind.

Just give me a June night the moonlight and you

The wedding date is set. The church is reserved. Arrangements have been made for the reception.

Still, much remains to be done buying the cake, the flowers, the dresses for the bride and the attendants.

Among the lengthy list of things to be done before the wedding is the selection of gifts for the attendants and groomsmen.

The choice of gifts depends largely on the amount of time and money the couple can spend.

If the wedding date is still some time away and job or school considerations do not take too much time, the couple can be more creative in the selection.

Original art, pottery or jewelry can add a personal touch not available in any store.

By planning ahead, the couple can create items ranging from decorative candles to needlecrafted items.

The list is endless. Needlepointed or embroidered pillows or wall hangings can be finished if time allows and the list of gifts is short.

Sometimes, a project like this can work to the bride's advantage by relieving the tension of pre-wedding "nervies."

The amount of money the couple wishes to allot for these gifts is, of course, an important factor.

GIFTS CAN range from inexpensive key chains to expensive jewelry such as pins or bracelets.

Monograms always add a personal touch. Again, the time factor comes into play. Often the items must be first ordered from the manufacturer and then engraved. Some jewelers recommend that orders be placed about 10 weeks in advance to insure delivery.

Other gifts that can be monogrammed are leather billfolds good for both attendants and groomsmen, engagement books (if the wedding takes place close to the first of a year) address books, or money clips.

Pewter mugs, silver bud vases, Revere bowls or other silver items are also popular choices.

PEN AND pencil sets which run the price-range gamut are another choice.

Travel clocks are handy items which one would not often buy for himself but might like to receive as a gift.

Always handy are pocket calculators which are also available in a range of prices depending on the number of functions they perform.

A pair of leather gloves is also a useful choice.

If the couple is interested in green and growing things, plants will provide a lasting gift.

TERRARIUMS or planters can be ordered from the florist or prepared by the couple.

Dried flower arrangements or pressed flower pictures can be prepared.

To provide a memory of the year, one of the many commemorative plates that are now available could be selected.

If the attendants are unmarried, the bride might consider selecting items that could be added to hope chests.

No matter the choice or the cost, the gift should provide a lasting memory of the occasion.

I'll be wearing ribbons down my back

Most brides want to be a picture of loveliness on their wedding day, but without a frame the picture won't be complete. Thus, whether it's a sophisticated cloche or a gentle mantilla the headpiece is a final and necessary component of the bridal ensemble.

Fortunately, veils have come a long way from chin length illusion. No longer is a smile hidden under a barrage of netting and veils that do cover faces are of the sheerest netting.

Further, it is easily adapted to the bridesmaids' ensembles, with the fabric of the bridesmaids gown trimming their mantillas.

If netting and head-hugging hats don't suit you, the large brimmed hat continued to be a pretty alternative, this year with a twist. The hat features a wider, more sculptured brim and a smaller crown than floppy brims of past seasons.

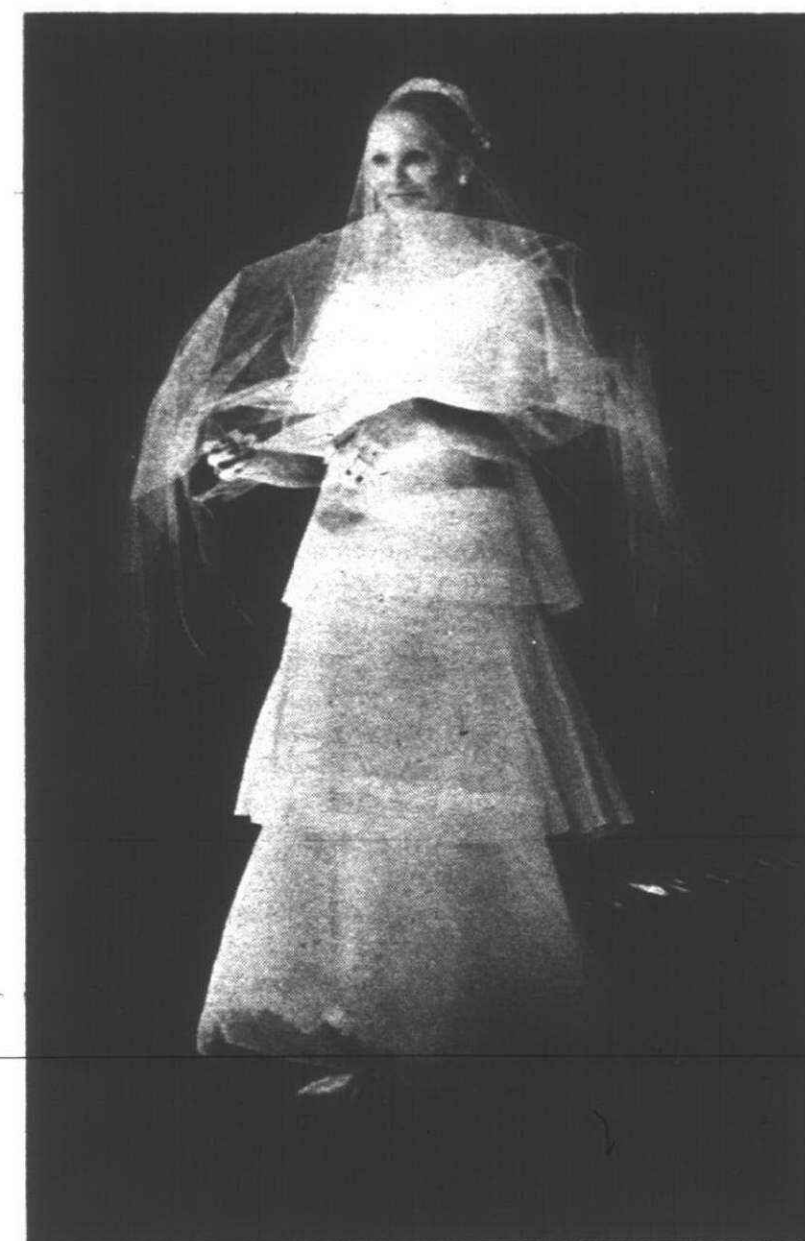

The hats may be dressed up

or down with a ring of fresh flowers or totally covered with appliqued flowers.

Selecting your headpiece must be done as carefully as selecting your gown. For example, a sleek cloche will never complement an old fashioned gown...so don't forget what the mood of your gown is when you pick out your headpiece.

This bride is covered with illusion, from one tier to another and veiled all the way to the floor in the sheerest of netting.

It won't be a stylish marriage I can't afford a carriage...

If you warble with the songsters that "The Best Things in Life are Free," and consider a wedding to be one of THOSE things, forget it.

A wedding even in its simplest form is never even inexpensive, let alone free.

A wedding budget has to be highly flexible, for there are many hidden costs. One unflinching way to combat the inflation that is always with them, start planning as soon as the date is set.

Get all arrangements in writing and signed in triplicate, as a bit of insurance against coronary arrest when the bills come rolling in.

American society, made up of many cultures and different customs, still holds that the whole show is the financial responsibility of the bride and her family.

They are liable for the invitations, announcements, including pew cards, envelopes and reception cards; for the rental of place of the reception and all necessary accessories, and equipment, and for all decorations.

They are responsible for the musicians' fees; the transportation of the women attendants to and from the church (the men of the party usually use their own cars); for the bouquets of the female-attendants; the bride's gifts to her attendants and for the hotel accommodations of any out-of-town bridesmaids who cannot be accommodated in homes of relatives or friends.

They pay for the trousseau, for all food and drink at the reception.

This is a common practice in most cultures.

It is imperative that in the case of a wealthy boy marrying a girl from a less-wealthy family for example, the "social" standing of the boy's family should not work a hardship on the budget of the bride's house.

In some cases of this type, the bridegroom's family has offered to help with the tab. This is a private matter and should be settled privately, preferably and solely between the fathers concerned.

If the offer is not accepted by the bride's side then it should be dropped and the boy's parents be content with what the bride's have to offer.

A neat way out is for the rich parents to give a party of their own AFTER the honeymoon. Then they can gather up the friends and "important business connections" that were left out of the wedding day entertainment.

Otherwise, the bridegroom and/or his family pay for the engagement and wedding rings (The bride pays for the bridegroom's ring if there is one); license fees, contribution to church and officiating individual.

He also pays for the bride's bouquet and the flowers worn by the mothers and other honored guests such as a grandmother.

He buys his best man and ushers, their boutonnieres (and their ties and gloves for a formal ceremony), and gifts commemorating the occasion.

He gives a bachelor dinner if he wants one. He pays the hotel bill of his out-of-town attendants, and for the honeymoon.

His parents pay their own travel and hotel expenses if needed; for their gift to the young pair and they may give a rehearsal party but are not to be pressured into doing so.

They offer. They are not asked to do so and never blackmailed into it.

Perhaps the most important single rule in wedding financing and certainly in this current financial climate is

DON'T get in over your head or force anyone to do so.

BRIDES: use discretion in choosing dresses for the attendants. No Dior originals unless you're going to pay for them.

BRIDESMAIDS: if the price of being an attendant is going to be higher than you can manage, don't accept. Tell the bride the truth. Don't hurt her feelings by trying to trump up an excuse.

Once you have accepted an invitation to be an attendant it is hard to wiggle out of it.

But it's not as hard as discovering that you're going to have to sell the gold fillings in your teeth to pay for outfit, beauty appointments, a gift, your share of a wedding present and attending other parties some of which will require you to bring a gift.

Let him fall in love with the real you

Stay as sweet as you are Maintaining your identity after marriage is not as easy as maintaining your maiden name.

But the chances of surviving are stronger if you know yourself well before hand, according to area psychologists and marriage counselors.

"People need to be very honest before marriage, and be careful not to present someone else to their partner. If you have the other person fall in love with someone who doesn't exist then disappointment results," said Dr. William Lawrence, a certified marriage counselor and psychologist.

Being honest before marriage means you don't have to be anyone else afterwards.

"If you marry someone who likes the person you are, then they'll always want you to be that person," he said.

Dr. Lawrence admitted people have a tendency to fall into socialized roles, defining themselves by age or situation. But people should refrain from categorizing themselves, he said, to not fall into clichés and platitudes, even though social pressures can sometimes override individual rights.

"We can't ignore the fact we're social animals. We have to be ourselves within certain limits. But we're not victims, we're not like plants. We have a great deal of physical and psychological mobility to avoid getting trapped."

But that takes awareness, direction and courage, he said. The ability to recognize that you're adopting a role, a new image to direct yourself towards and the courage to take the first step.

Overcoming parental, as well as cultural, messages directing our behavior is another struggle, said Barbara Goldstein, a social worker who has been counseling couples since 1945.

"When people know themselves they can decide if these messages are right," she said. Otherwise, "We fall without thinking into a role, never asking 'Does this make sense?'"

If you know yourself and your partner very well, you live as you really are and avoid "play-acting," she said, and you should be able to avoid the traps which erode your own personality.

It's not necessary to be independent of each other in order to maintain your identity, according to Claire Voltberg, a marriage counselor who works in Birmingham.

"When people meet and begin to feel things for one another, a 'we' develops," he said.

"What is shared may not always be clear...but there is nothing wrong in being interdependent, if it is spoken of and you don't have hidden agendas."

Dependence doesn't have to be resisted. The important thing is to be above board.

The person with a strong identity before marriage will not only maintain it inside the institution, but is also more likely to have a successful marriage.

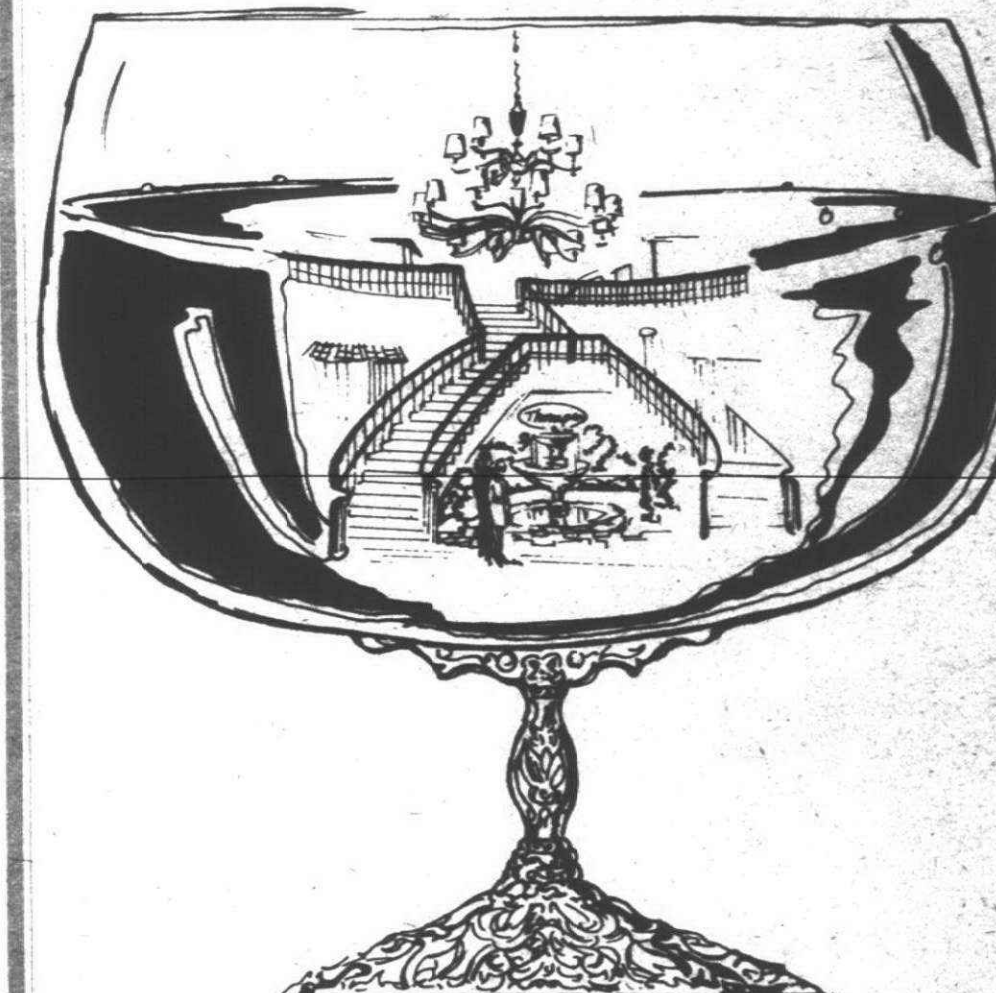

"That person's major task will be the marriage while the person without an identity, his major task will be getting an identity," said Gabriel DesHarnais, a therapist for 16 years.

"Why you choose a certain person says something about your identity, and whether you remain an individual depends on your personality," he said. "Some wed thinking the marriage will do the work. Some grow together and some grow apart."

And Dr. Lawrence added, "The important part is to select the right person. If you want to enhance your mating, marry an individual who likes the identity you are."
